EVERYMAN'S PSYCHOLOGY

9. WHAT MAN'S SACK CAN HOLD

(By FATHER G. BYRNE, S.J.)

Last week we dwelt on some considerations about "Mind in Animals" brought forward by the Month in a resume of a controversy on the subject from the Times. Comparison of human behaviour with animal behaviour is helpful if we want to have clear notions of the enormous distance which lies between sense perception and the very varied series of actions which may follow sense perception on the one hand, and on the other intellectual knowledge and the well-nigh infinite fields of exploration which it opens up. In everyday life, at least in conversation, we are apt to elevate the animal to the human plane in many of its actions, instead of seeing that whilst the animal always remains true to his own nature, not straying outside the boundaries of sense, man, on the contrary, forgetting the ideals and the dignity which are his, descends to the level where dogs bark and cats hiss and spit.

"The Dog's Delight!"

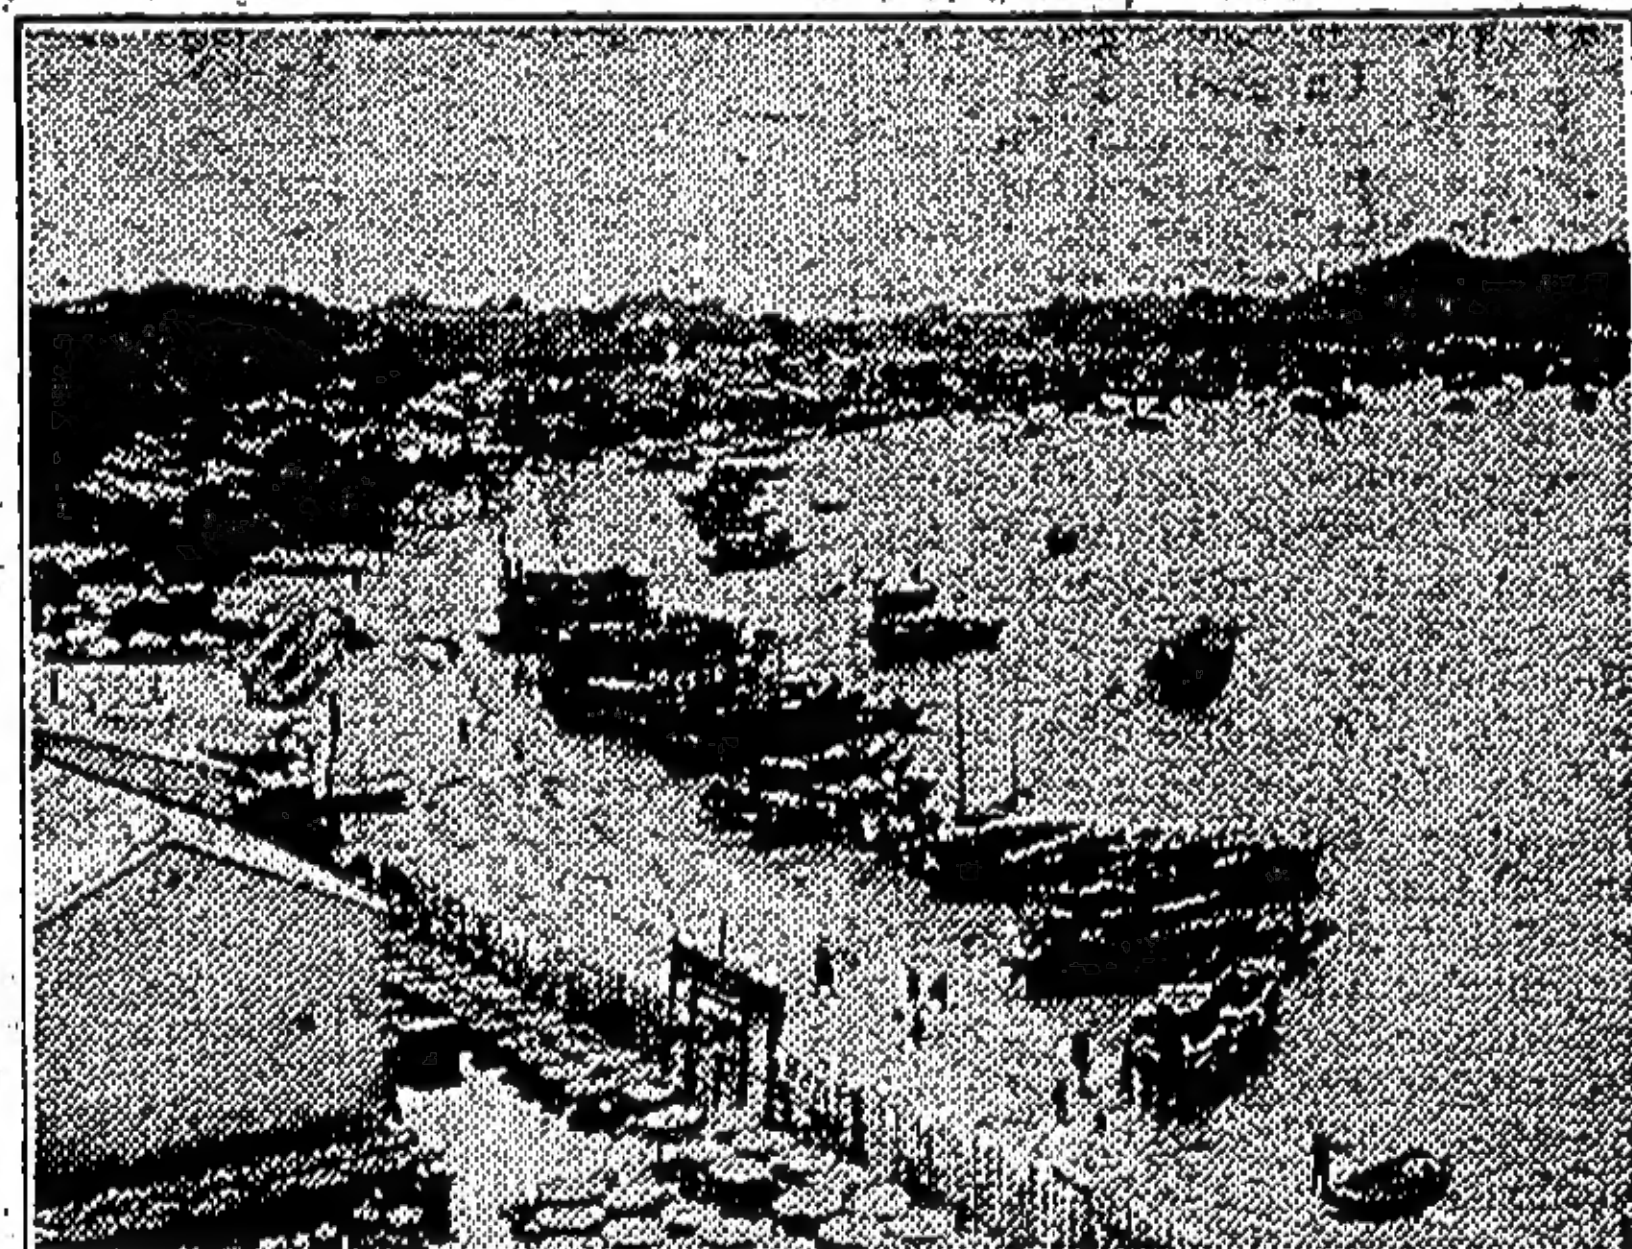

Thus we say, when a dog manifests jealousy at the petting of ther yesterday nor to-morrow is in the bark of the dog nor in mine: if I find a yesterday intruding with a sad note of warning, or a to-morrow dawning with a rainbow of hopeful peace, I must hunt for another sack to hold them: the quivering body will not do.

A Readable Book.

In a very readable little book Modern Science and the Truths Beyond, the well-known French astronomer Abbe Moreux develops this idea of the notion of a spirit act by a simple illustration from geometry. A polygon is defined as a figure bounded by straight lines. If you examine the definition you will see that no mere sensations could give you a correct idea of a polygon. In the first place you have never seen a straight line. A bit of string stretched, a ruler, represent what you have seen, but a straight line has neither breadth nor thickness, so that you must begin by abstracting from sense perception just the very things which cause it, thickness and breadth.

SCENES IN HONG KONG

another dog, and begins to growl, "How like a human being he is!" We ought, on the contrary, when man growls with jealousy, to say "how like his dog!" Anger or rage, is one of the emotions or passions bound up with sense life so intimately that the "feeling"—we instinctively use the right word—of anger or rage causes a resonance in the whole bodily frame: you can see the tightening of the muscles, the flash of the eye, the clenching of the hands. The resonance in man and in the animal are quite similar in type. But, in the midst of the storm, man may suddenly begin to reflect on the cause of his anger: he may examine himself and find registered in the pages of memory good resolutions against violent outbursts; when he stops to do this the rage has subsided. We cannot imagine a dog hunting for his memo book of pious resolves not to bark at the curs that may chance to pass by. A resolution of the kind is a spiritual act: it is the outcome of reflection, weighing of consequences, sorrow for past faults, conflict on friends, motives brought forward to strengthen the will for a combat which I foresee will not be without its difficulties in the future. Man has passed into the world far beyond these things and now, worlds of sense, his acts have ceased to be material: they are not confined to the stuff of a mere cry of pain or joy is made. The philosopher falls back on the homely proverb: "You can't get more out of a sack than there's in it." Nei-

Clearly no sense faculty enables you to deny width and depth to a corporal substance. Yet you have the idea. It is by the use of such ideas that the geometrician builds his science. There must, then, be within you a special power of the soul to give rise to this distinctive activity. The organic faculties, eye, ear, hand, can do no more than put us in contact with objects which are concrete and individual. A totally different power is required to discern the universal: we have this power since we all have ideas of cause, effect, infinity. One of the most characteristic acts of this power of my soul is that of self-examination. My sense activity, seeing, hearing, touching, makes me aware of the life that is mine. But, without intelligence of a higher order than the order of sense, I could not realise what psychologists call my Ego; that is I could not double back on myself, and with the soul's light, not only reflect the plan from the outside, but also, while a thing follows me, I, the moment intelligence comes into play the soul becomes aware of its own existence; it becomes conscious of itself as one, undivided principle, uniting its varied experiences, projecting its yesterday and to-days into the future, and living in the sunshine of to-morrow's hopes, is no act of sensation alone could enable it to do.

OUR SCOTTISH AIR-MAIL LETTER

Prince to Visit Scotland: Arms of Dundee: Enterprising Shipowners: A Royal Year: Glasgow Engagement: Youth Hostel on Loch Ard: A Scottish Department: Mr. J. R. Dickson K. C.

(Special Air-Mail Service)

EDINBURGH, Feb. 28.

Mandarin's Gift to a Scot.
A Scottish doctor who lived in the eighteenth century and a Chinese object of art which is to come under the hammer at Sotheby's next month have little apparent connection, but nevertheless the two did once come together. The article is a beautiful circular table screen decorated in high relief with squirrels on a vine tree, the work being carried out in brilliant enamel of green, aubergine, red, black, and grey, and it is only one of a collection of rare porcelain and works of art of the Tang, Sung, and Ming dynasties that is to be sold. The screen was made to the special order of a mandarin in the early eighteenth century, and later became the property of his grandson, whose medical adviser happened to be a Scot. This grandson fell ill, and was faithfully attended and cured by the doctor, to whom, in his gratitude, he presented the valuable screen. It has now drifted, probably through many hands, into a London sale-room.

Prince to Visit Scotland.

The Prince of Wales will visit Scotland towards the end of March to see something of what is being done by voluntary effort where unemployment is especially severe. During his visit, which will last three days, His Royal Highness will be the guest of Lord Elgin at Broomhall, and Lord Weir at Eastwood.

Prince Buys Scots Tweed at B.I.F.

The Queen visited the textile section of the British Industries Fair at the White City, London on Feb. 22. With her were the Prince of Wales and the Princess Royal. The Prince of Wales bought some tweeds in the Glen Urquhart pattern at one stall. "Send me a book of patterns, please," he said. "I like bright checks."

After having seen the finest of summer dress materials, the royal party became interested in an exhibit of rough jute, and the Queen asked many questions of Miss Horsburgh, M.P. for Dundee. The Queen asked particularly about unemployment in Dundee, where the jute bags are made, and Miss Horsburgh replied that it was still very bad.

Arms of Dundee.

To make the exhibit of jute bags more distinctive they have been marked with the coat of arms of Dundee, and the Queen said, "This is a good idea, but you have embossed the old coat of arms." She apparently knew that the coat of arms had been changed recently.

At another stall the Prince of Wales was presented with a pair of silk pyjamas, a silk dressing-gown, and silk-covered slippers made to his own measurements in a new shade of blue.

When Lord Derby was told that a 10-stone weight bouncing on a chair to prove its strength was equivalent to 16 stone of human weight, he said, "That is just my weight," and, amid a roar of laughter, the Prince said, "I think you might risk it."

And 30 seconds after the Prince had sat on the chair an Aberdonian bought it and immediately telegraphed the glad news to his family in the North. He paid the usual price for the chair, plus a drink for the salesman.

Enterprising Shipowners.

Shipbuilders could not complain if there were a few more shipowners with the confidence of Messrs. J. and C. Harrison, London. In the past three years they have ordered seven or eight vessels annually, and during the last 18 months the Clyde has obtained contracts from these owners for 10 cargo steamers, including the orders for the two vessels. Due to the work that has been carried out by shipbuilders and marine engineers in the last year or so it is now possible to build vessels of such an economical design that ships built ten or even five years ago cannot compete with the modern products. Shipowners who have the wisdom to take advantage of the latest technique in ship construction are bound to benefit in the long run.

A Royal Year.

Scotland is promised its full share of royal visits this year. The Prince of Wales comes next month to inspect the social work being done among the unemployed. The Duke and Duchess of York have a visit to the North-east arranged, and the Earl of Harewood and the Princess Royal will be in Edinburgh in June. Then, later on, autumn is almost sure to bring the King and Queen north to Deeside. The prospects seem set fair for a royal year on the Scottish social side.

Prince's Scottish Tour.

The arrangements for the Scottish tour of the Prince of Wales, which begins at Glasgow on March 29, will, I learned, yesterday, be more or less completed by the end of this week. The Prince is particularly interested in what is being done to provide facilities to meet the enforced idleness of the unemployed. So during his Scottish visit an endeavour will be made to show him a variety of schemes organised mainly by voluntary effort.

Glasgow Engagements.

It is probable that his engagements in the Glasgow district will number eight or nine. A scheme of particular interest in Glasgow is the Queen Margaret Settlement in Anderson where 50 men make various articles of furniture for their own homes and also repair the footwear for their families. In Bridgeton is the physical culture scheme of the Ministry of Labour. At Clydebank the Prince will see the splendid scheme that has been started by Dr. Boyd, Lecturer on Education at Glasgow University. This is one of the best in Scotland.

Youth Hostel on Loch Ard.

The Lord Provost, Mr. A. B. Swan, will open the first of the new Scottish youth hostels on Saturday, March 25, at Ledard, on the north-west corner of Loch Ard. The new

KING'S CROSS AIR PORT

PLAN FOR TRANSPORT CENTRE

RAIL, ROAD, AIR, AND WATER

(Special Air-Mail Service)

London, Feb. 28.—A company was formed recently, under the name of Central Air Ports, Limited, to seek Parliamentary powers for the construction of an air port behind King's Cross and St. Pancras stations, above the railway sidings. A board meeting held yesterday confirmed the appointment of Sir Alfred Beit, M.P., as chairman of the company.

The estimated capital cost of the scheme is £5,000,000. Its salient points are shown in a scale model which Captain C. W. Glover, the designer of the air port, has made. The projected aerodrome is in plan like an eight-spoked wheel, half a mile in diameter and 120ft. above ground level. The four intersecting runways are each 250ft. wide. One or another of them will be used according to the direction of the wind, and so it will always be possible for aircraft to take off and land against the wind. At night the runway in use will be illuminated, and the lighting will shift automatically with a change of wind. Large buildings will support the aerodrome at intervals. Some of these buildings will be warehouses, depositories, cold stores, and so forth, and others hangars for aircraft, which will descend into them from the aerodrome by lifts.

Marketing and Distributing.

The promoters view the air port as only one element in a comprehensive plan, intended to co-ordinate in one centre, for the first time in history, all forms of transport—rail, road, air, and water. The Grand Union Canal crosses the site, and it is proposed to make a connection with the Underground railways. The scheme contemplates the formation here of a great marketing and distributing centre, which would set free valuable land now serving the same purposes elsewhere in London. Wholesale supplies would arrive by rail and water, and only local distribution would be effected by road.

The scheme is divided into several sections, each designed to be revenue-earning, and the intention is to go forward a section at a time. The first work to be put in hand would be the reorganization of the railway goods yards, and the erection of tall warehouses to replace singletory buildings on the site. The second stage would be the making of a motor-coach station for long-distance traffic from the North. The proposals involve the clearance of a dilapidated area of three acres and the rehousing of the present occupants, and the construction of a new approach from Caledonian Road. On the town-planning aspects of the scheme the company is advised by Sir Raymond Unwin, the chairman of the Greater London Town Planning Committee, and on the aeronautical side by Colonel the Master of Sempill.

hostel is a wooden building constructed on an improved plan, and will make a link with those already established at Inverberg and Brig o' Turk. The Scottish Youth Hostels Association also announces that there will be a new hostel at Glenbrittle, the second in the Isle of Skye.

A Scattered Department.

If the agitation, in which Sir Samuel Chapman is so actively concerned, results in a centralised building for the Government Departments in Edinburgh, the Department of Health will greatly benefit. For their staff is scattered over the five different buildings—in Princes Street, George Street, Grassmarket, Ross Street, and Shandwick Place.

Mr. J. R. Dickson, K.C.

The King has been pleased, on the recommendation of the Secretary of State for Scotland, to approve the appointment of Mr. John Robert Dickson, K.C., at present Clerk of Justiciary in Scotland, to be Sheriff of Argyll in the room of Mr. John Lean Ward, K.C., appointed to be one of the Senators of the College of Justice in Scotland.

Mr. J. R. Dickson, K.C., is a son of the late Lord Justice Clerk Lord Dickson. He was educated at Edinburgh Academy and University College, Oxford, and in 1909 was called to the Scottish Bar. He was in practice until war broke out in 1914, when he enlisted in the 1st Battalion Cameron Highlanders. Shortly afterwards Mr. Dickson was transferred to the 6th Battalion, and served with them in France until after the Armistice. He then returned to Parliament House to continue his practice.

Mr. Dickson was appointed an Advocate Depute during the last Conservative Government. He is

LION FLAG OF SCOTLAND

EMBLEM UNFURLED AT STIRLING

THREAT OF PROSECUTION

(Special Air-Mail Service)

Stirling, Feb. 28.—The Lion Rampant flag was unfurled on the Regal Cinema, Stirling. The opinion of the Secretary of State for Scotland had been obtained to the effect that there was no reason to discourage the flying of this flag which a few weeks previously the Lord Lyon King of Arms had ordered Mr. Guthrie, the manager, to take down. The order of the Lyon was made under a Royal Warrant issued by Mary Queen of Scots. The Lyon had threatened to prosecute Mr. Guthrie if the flag was flown.

At the close of Saturday's ceremony a large crowd sang the National Anthem. Mr. David A. Stewart, the managing director, in unfurling the flag, said that letters from Scots in all parts of the world had reached him asking him to make a strong endeavour to persuade the authorities to recognize the flag as belonging to the Scottish people.

The Lion Flag Controversy.

The question of the right of private persons to fly the Lion flag of Scotland has from time to time aroused extraordinary interest in Scotland. The immediate cause of the present discussion was the refusal of the Lord Lieutenant of the County of Stirling to permit the flying of the flag on a picture-house in the county town. So many protests followed that the Lord Lyon King of Arms issued a statement that the banner is the personal flag of the King of Scotland; that it is registered in the books of the Public Register of All Arms as such, and that it is therefore illegal for anyone but the Sovereign to display it.

But the Scottish Office intervened, and the Secretary of State for Scotland announced in a letter to a Stirling Solicitor that "there is no necessity to discourage the display" of the Lion flag. The Lyon Office is, of course, academically correct in its attitude; indeed, as the Lyon has indicated, a Royal warrant of Queen Mary still exists instructing the Lyon King to put to death all persons who usurp the Royal arms.

The whole position was altered. But it has, however, been argued that in 1603, at the Union of the Crowns, there is much more recent justification for the popular use of the Lion banner. In March, 1907, the use of the Royal Standard, of which the Lion flag is now merely a quartering, was forbidden by the Scottish Office to private persons, and as this was popularly construed as an order discontinuing the use of the Lion flag itself, a circular was issued by the Office to chief constables in Scotland to the effect that the order "did not apply with equal force" to the Lion banner. Notwithstanding the objections of the Lyon of that time, the Scottish Office issued another statement in 1911 adhering to its first decision. That decision is again ratified by the Scottish Office in its latest communication.

Opinion in official circles in Scotland, however, is that the controversy is by no means at an end. Permission to fly the flag comes from a different source from that which forbids its use. The view of the Scottish Office is at variance with that of the Herald's Office, and, strictly speaking, the position could be altered only by a writ from the Crown to the Lyon King, countersigned by the Secretary of State. Which, it is asked, is the superior authority, the Scottish Office, or the Lyon King? It is the Lyon's statutory duty to see that arms are not irregularly displayed, and there has been no alteration in the rights and duties which belong by statute and common law to that official. The Scottish Office is by centuries the junior institution. "Has it the legal right to override the decisions of the Lyon King?" Though the Lion flag was restored to its position on the Stirling picture-house, on Saturday it would be well to have the question of the appropriate use of the flag made perfectly clear.

Scarce Salmon.

News which reaches me from Speyside suggests that the salmon fishing in the North is opening very unpromisingly this spring.

Perhaps it is not right to argue general conditions from the luck of one river. But the Spey for long has enjoyed fame as one of the very finest salmon rivers in Scotland.

Some 30 or 40 years ago the fishermen took from it more than 750 fish in a single gillnet haul, which wrecked their tackle and choked the river bank. In the first fortnight of the present season their total haul of 11 fish have not exceeded one-tenth of that figure.

BEAUTY FOR THE ARMS

Some Simple Home Treatments.

REALLY beautiful arms are a rare possession—so rare that the new vogue for sleeves on evening frocks is welcomed by almost every woman. There is, however, no reason why you should shun the smart simplicity of the sleeveless evening gown.

If your arms are unlovely here are some simple home treatments which will help to restore them to beauty.

In almost every case it is not the shape of the arm but the condition of the skin that robs it of beauty. Often blemishes are caused by bad circulation in that particular part, and something must be done to stimulate the blood.

Brisk scrubbing with a nail-brush or loofah is the best treatment. Make a good lather with warm water and a lathered soap, and scrub until the skin is pink and glowing. This will cleanse the pores and leave the skin soft and clear. One treatment is not enough. Do it every day for a week, and a remarkable improvement will be noticed.

In cases where the condition is of long standing it is advisable to massage the affected skin with olive oil about ten minutes before scrubbing.

When Massage Helps.

MANY an otherwise beautiful arm is spoiled by pads of flesh which form on the upper part of the arm, giving it an ugly, thick-set appearance when the shoulders of one's dress end.

Massage—in the form of a deep, pinching movement—is excellent for dispersing this, especially if used in conjunction with one of the popular reducing vinegars.

Begin at the shoulder and grip quite a large portion of flesh between all four fingers and the palm of your hand. Work systematically downward towards the elbow, pinching right round the arm.

Brown or discoloured arms may, unless the condition is serious, be made soft and white if rubbed over daily with half a freshly-cut lemon, writes a "Daily Mail" correspondent. This is a splendid bleach. Rub it all over the arms, beginning at the shoulders and working down to the finger-tips, and allow it to dry on.

To Banish Roughness.

ROUGH elbows spoil the prettiest arms, and here, again, home treatment will help. Scrub your elbows with a soft nail-brush vigorously in hot, soapy water, rinse in cold water and dry thoroughly. Pour a soothing lotion into two small bowls, and hold your elbows in the bowls for at least five minutes. Finish off the treatment by gentle massage with sweet almond oil.

For your evening make-up, liquid powder of a flesh or natural tint, sponging it on liberally over neck, back, and arms. Then, working from the wrists towards the shoulders, rub it in firmly with the palms of your hands, and when it is dry, go over the whole surface with a chamomile leather.

This type of powder will cover all blemishes and gives a smooth, natural finish that leaves no tell-tale imprints on your dancing partner's coat.

"DRESSING-UP" A DULL ROOM

AN ordinary room, with ordinary ash windows and no particular "personality" not very promising is it? There is nothing to live up to about it, everything is so humdrum that, inevitably, one's outlook takes on the same uninspiredness.

But if we bestir ourselves we can quickly realise what improvements can be made so that our "ordinary" room is the envy of all beholders. For what about new curtains, a gay bedspread, and cushions? Something to make a difference; and at no great expense either.

A very striking room is that where the walls are plain ivory and paint-work of dull black, using glass door-handles to lighten the "door" effect, and all fabrics, carpet or rug—as well, of a lovely apple-green. The texture, in this instance, should be glossy on the walls, as this shows up better with the black woodwork of matt surface. If green is thought too delicate for rugs or carpet, a plain black will be in sympathy. China or pottery should be in harmonising shades of green.

Even though there may not be new colours on the walls and woodwork, and the curtains are not to be replaced, there is still another way of cheering up a dull room by new "table" arrangements. There may be a bright glass dessert service, or a new pottery dinner service, or even something bright in the way of a "glass" finish for the centre of the dinner-table; for instance, a large glass fish or glass bowl of bright fruit, lit up, of course, to add a final touch.

There are so many ways of making schemes out of a right mixture of good colours, and of creating a new atmosphere, but they want thinking out beforehand. A choice at "random" is seldom worth while. A walk through Whiteaway's furnishing department will give you plenty of ideas.

Are You Too Fat?

Exercises to Overcome Flabbiness. Here are some daily exercise that will prevent the abdomen from becoming flabby:—

1. Stand erect. Raise right knee, and draw in to chest. Repeat with left knee.

2. With arms stretched above head, bend down from hips. Straighten body, then bend alternately to right and to left.

3. With arms stretched sideways and feet apart, turn to right from hips and bend down as far as possible. Repeat on the left side.

4. Lie on back and move legs as if pedalling a bicycle.

5. Lie on back, bending. Inhale when straightening. Exhale when bending.

Do six movements of each exercise every day.

FRUIT, COFFEY.

Green Pea Soup.

One qt. green peas, 1 1/2 oz. butter, 3 quarts water, 1 onion, a handful of spinach, 3 leeks, 1 spring of mint, pepper and salt. If fresh peas are used, shell them, wash the pods, put them into a pan with the mint and water, and boil for about one hour. Rub the pods through a sieve, return to the pulp and liquor to the pan, add the hearts of the lettuce and the spinach, well washed and finely shredded, the peas and the pooled and shredded onion. Simmer for 1 hour or until the vegetables are soft. Knead the butter and flour together and add them bit by bit, stirring each piece in well before adding the next. Season and serve with fried bread. Sufficient for 6 or 8 people.

Haricot Bean Croquettes.

1 lb. of cooked haricot beans, flour 1/2 oz. of butter, margarine or dripping, breadcrumbs, 2 eggs, frying fat, salt, pepper, fried parsley. Rub the beans through a sieve, melt the butter or margarine and season the mixture with salt and pepper. Season egg for binding the mixture. Shape the mixture into balls or cones, brush with the aid of a little flour. Brush these over with beaten egg, dip in breadcrumbs and fry in deep hot fat until pale brown. Drain on kitchen paper and garnish with fried parsley. Serve with tomato sauce.

Lazy Knitting

Simple and Speedy Method

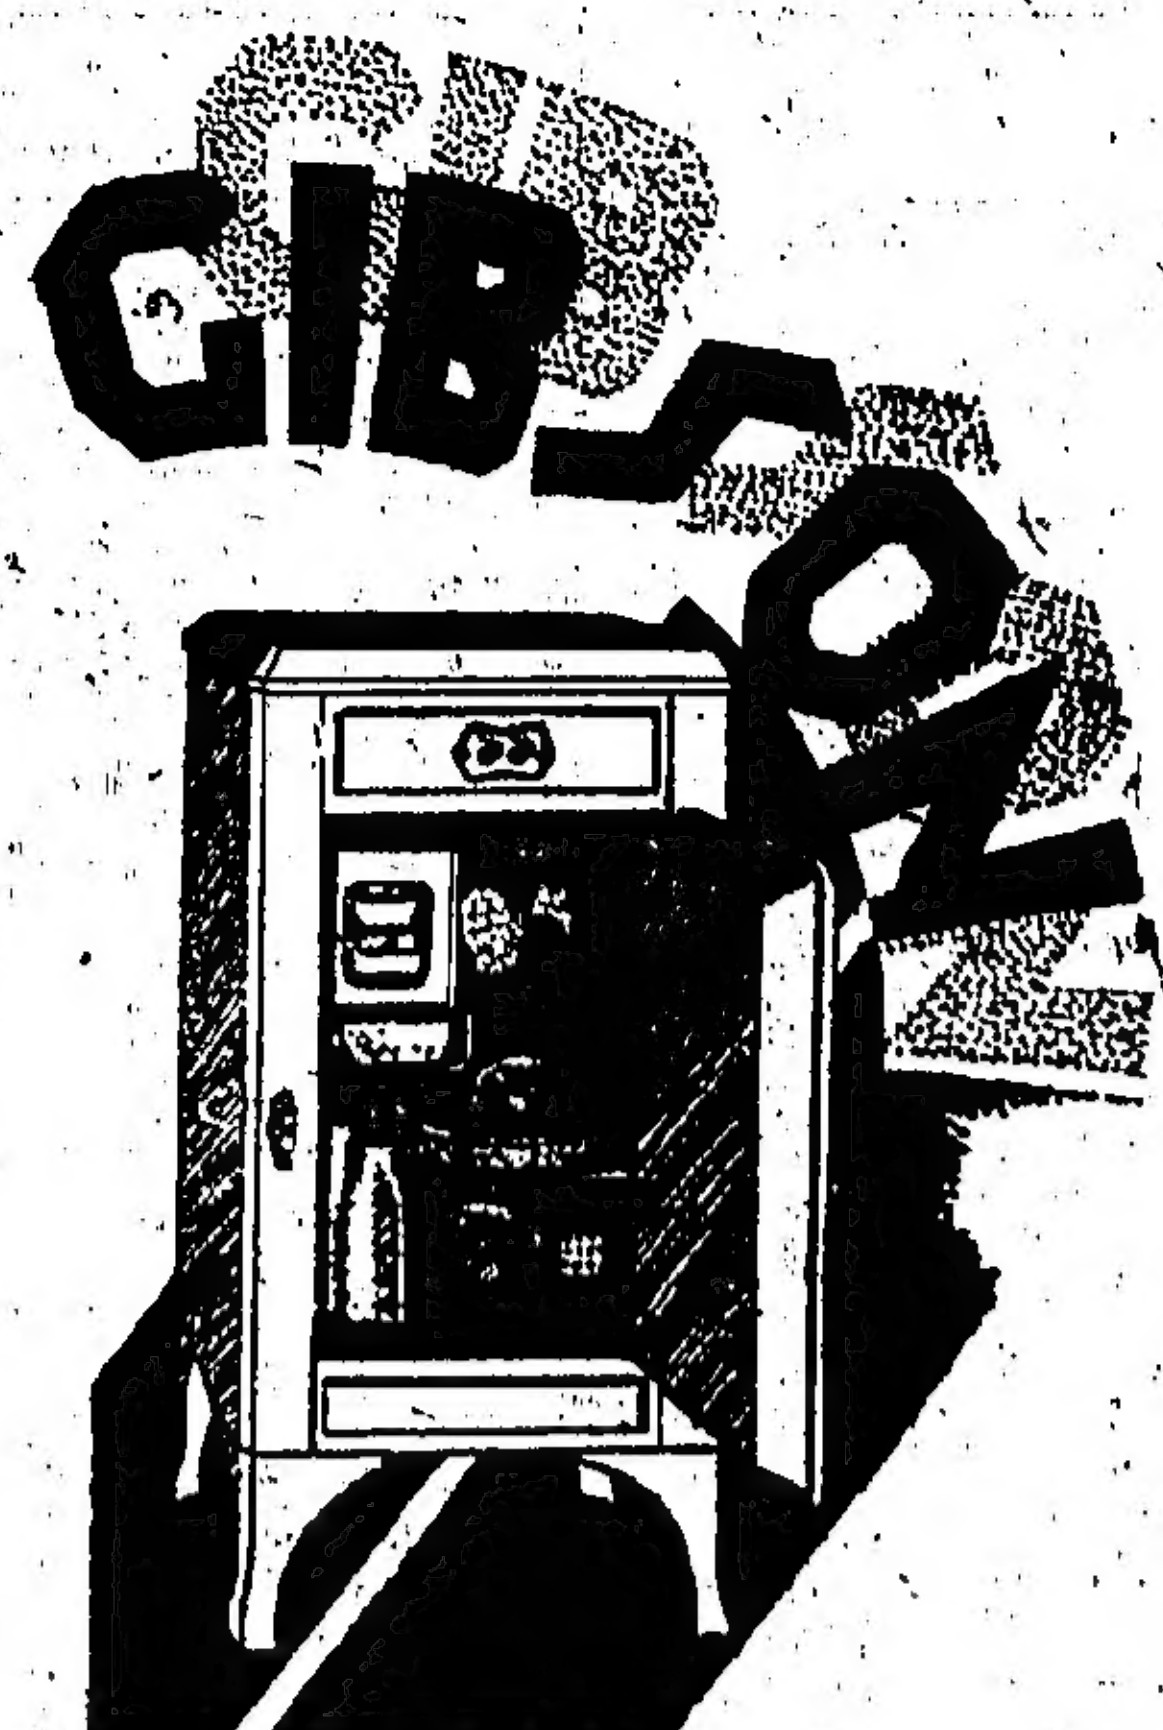

I wonder if you know the Lazy Woman's way of knitting one-third of the length required? It sounds incredible, but is a very easy and rapid way of knitting for anything where really hard wear is not required. It may have a proper name, this kind of knitting; but I call it "Drop-stitch knitting," which is a really descriptive title.

As to procedure, anyone who can knit can do drop-stitch knitting. There is no difference between it and ordinary knitting—either plain or garter stitch—while the work is in progress. It is only in the last row before casting off that there is any peculiarity. Then, every second stitch is dropped, the work is cast off—and pulled! As the alternative stitches run down, the knitting stretches out to approximately three times its original length. It is more open than ordinary knitting, and the stitch have a twist in them.

Easy to Do; Light to Hold.

Naturally this knitting is only of use for straight articles; but it is ideal for heel-less bed-sox, or—on either two or four needles—for woollen scarves.

It also makes delightful bed-wraps. Cast on about a hundred and sixty stitches and knit a strip, eighteen inches long; this pulls out to over four feet. When two pieces of this size are completed, one white and one coloured, they are placed on top of each other, and crocheted together round the edge. Ribbons are sewn on to tie it together. The two ends are folded back diagonally to make the cuffs, and are stitched up. The wrap is then complete, dainty and comfortable, and just as warm as the usual wrap which is knitted in garter-stitch or very coarse needles; and the wrap is much more easily made in drop-stitch, as—the needles being finer—the work is much lighter to hold.

NEW INDUSTRY IN

PROGRAMMES SOLD FOR
2s. A WEEK

Brighton.—An astonishing story of the growth of a new industry in Great Britain was told me recently, by the man who claims to have originated it,—writes a home correspondent.

The industry is that of relaying composite, wireless programmes to listeners who pay a small sum per week for the service. The man is Mr. L. E. Owen, formerly a B.B.C. engineer.

Five years ago he began a relaying system at Clacton, with a capital of £50. Seventy-eight companies are now engaged in relaying their own compiled programmes all over the country, and it is estimated that the capital involved is in the neighbourhood of £3,500,000.

Mr. Owen told me that something like 300,000 listeners in Great Britain are now taking these synthetic programmes, which are "arranged" by the private firms from existing programmes, British and foreign. At a new housing estate at Hove, underground lines are laid from the private service station to each house, and "free wireless for the first year" is one of the induc-ments offered to prospective tenants.

"No Politics" Ban.

Mr. Owen is the chief engineer of the Broadcast Relay Services group (one of the largest operating), and he is at present on loan to the Brighton Radio Circuit Ltd.
"Each company," he told me,
"works under a Post Office licence, which is issued subject to certain restrictions—for instance, we are not allowed to relay any political discussion in English from a Continental station, and we must cut out any relay upon request of the Post Office."

"We find that our listeners' demand is almost entirely for jazz, light music and vaudeville, so we mix our programmes accordingly, substituting Continental items for the B.B.C. lectures and classical music when necessary."

"We are not allowed to originate any broadcasting ourselves, and we may not take programmes from Russia. Our receiving set is out on the downs, five miles away, with a steel mast 100ft high. Signals are conveyed by a hired private line to our central relaying station, where they are corrected, purified, and amplified, and transmitted to other nodal points."

"After more purification and amplifying they are then carried by wire to the loud speakers in our customers' houses. Installation and maintenance are free, and we charge 2s for a week of 100 hours service."

"In Brighton already we are using 400 miles of our own lines and forty miles of the Post Office line, while in other towns—Hull, Luton, Swindon, and Portsmouth, for instance—we have been making rapid headway. We are, in fact, rapidly becoming a public service."

"I first got the idea of relaying programmes when in 1925 I had the job of installing wireless in seventeen of the great London hospitals.
Two years later I started at Clacton with £50—less than the cost of part of the apparatus we are using here."

MINE SHAFT AS A PLAYGROUND

IN JACKIE COOPER FILM AT QUEEN'S

Jackie Cooper had a real, honest-to-goodness mine shaft, elevator and all, to play with when he enacted the tiny hero of "Divorce in the Family," Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's vivid drama of children and divorce.

The "mine" was dug at the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studios; a great hole with elevator, ore buckets and hoists, all worked by levers and a donkey-engine, Jackie was at the levers every minute between scenes.

"The 'rotamator,' or machine that sends the camera traveling all over the sets for effect-shots was another favorite plaything of the youthful star, and he became as proficient at manipulating it as the cameramen.

"Jackie," says Charles F. Riesner, who directed the picture, "appears to have a strong mechanical bent. If he doesn't remain an actor when he grows up I am willing to bet that he'll be an engineer."

Problem of Divorce.

The new picture is a vivid drama dealing with the problems of children whose parents divorce and remarry. Jackie is seen as a stentchill, and comedy, pathos, drama and thrills are all mingled in the poignant drama. The story is based on an original by Maurice Rapf. Conrad Nagel, Lewis Stone, Lois Wilson, Jean Parker, Maurice Murphy, Lawrence Grant and Richard Wallace are in the cast.

"THE MAN FROM YESTERDAY"

CLIVE BROOK IN WAR ROMANCE

America almost lost its leading English film star when Clive Brook, on a recent visit to his native England, was approached by a British film company with an offer to star in an English-made production. Brook refused the offer.

Brook, who cut his English visit short to return to Hollywood for his role in "The Man From Yesterday," said, "England, as this time, cannot expect to make successful motion pictures without the acting talent and technical skill now available in Hollywood alone. Without such an organization, nothing could induce me to make a picture in England."

In "The Man From Yesterday," showing at the King's Theatre, Brook is co-starred with Claudette Colbert. Charles Boyer, the popular European stage star, makes his American screen debut in this picture. Brook pointed to this combination of supporting strength as evidence of the way Hollywood attracts acting talent from every source.

"The Man From Yesterday" is the story of a romance begun in Paris during the exciting war days. Brook, on a short leave from the front marries Claudette, and, almost immediately, departs for duty. Later, he is reported killed. Claudette develops a friendship for Boyer, which, in time, turns into love. Years pass before she again finds Brook, a broken man in a veterans' hospital. Torn between her outworn duty and her newfound love, Claudette chooses to fulfill her duty to the man who is her husband. Brook, however, solves her problem in a surprising way.

for the added dialogue supplied by Lynn Starling.

Theatregoers without exception will thoroughly enjoy "Back Street," a picture that compellingly shows something that only pictures in a hundred ever attains.

"BACK STREET"

"HUMAN-DRAMA-OF HUMAN HEARTS"

As a human drama of human hearts, no motion picture shown on a local screen in several seasons has excelled "Back Street," the Universal screen play which opened yesterday at the Central Theatre. This noteworthy production is an adaptation of Fannie Hurst's widely read story of the same name, and the film version does full justice to the original novel of the noted authoress.

Irene Dunne, who plays the leading feminine role, is altogether delightful as the spirited young girl who finds true love when she least expected it, and gives up everything else in like to follow the dictates of her heart. That her lover is a married man and cannot prevent an affair which continues over a span of twenty years, because it is vital, fundamental, soul-stirring.

Much of the credit for the complete success of this picture must go to John M. Stahl, who has handled the entire story with a deftness and a degree of artistry which have served to surround the picture with an unusual degree of charm. Gladys Lehman has made an excellent adaptation of Fannie Hurst's story, no less may be said.

"DEVIL AND THE DEEP"

TALLULAH AND GARY COOPER

Romantic lighting has struck a second time at a certain oasis on a certain stretch of California desert.

Sadly enough, there was a catch each time—a battery of movie cameras were on hand to catch each and every development. For the first occasion was the big romantic scene from "The Sheikh," starring the late Rudolph Valentino. An the second was for "Devil and the Deep," starring Tallulah Bankhead and Gary Cooper. It opens on Sunday next at the King's Theatre.

The oasis is on the Lasky Ranch, not far from Los Angeles. Most of the desert action of "The Sheikh" was filmed there more than ten years ago. When locations for desert sequences of "Devil and the Deep" were being considered, it was decided to use the same spot.

The scene in "Devil and the Deep" which was filmed on the location occurs after Miss Bankhead, driven to distraction by the nagging of her insanely jealous husband, rushes out into a crowd of Moslems, celebrating a religious festival. Nearly trampled by the mob, she is rescued by Cooper, and the two seeking rest, ride out into the desert. At the oasis they dismount, and, impressed by the loveliness of the night, they yield to its enchantment.

Later, the husband, a submarine commander, gets them aboard his craft, takes it to sea and sinks it, as his revenge.

The Lasky Ranch has been the setting for other notable desert scenes, including those of "Morocco," in which Cooper was featured with Marlene Dietrich.

"NINE TILL SIX"

ANOTHER SUCCESSFUL PERFORMANCE

The A.D.C. gave another very successful production of "Nine till Six" at the King's Theatre last night to a large and appreciative audience.

If we might make a suggestion, the lighting was somewhat on the strong side. Otherwise the show was excellent. The last performance is being given to-night.

RADIO OFFICE EMPLOYEE SUMMONED

REFUSES TO PAY COMPENSATION.

William J. Chanson of the Government Radio Office was summoned by Yau Po Wah for assault at Central Magistracy yesterday.

The complainant said that on March 2 he was waiting for the lift when he was pushed by the defendant and struck in the face without any warning. He had previously been threatened by the defendant.

The defendant said that on the day in question, he accidentally pushed the complainant. The latter struck him and he retaliated in self defence.

His Worship (Mr. Schofield) then remarked that as both parties appeared to be on bad terms with each other, he would bind them over in the sum of $100 to be of good behaviour for one year. Complainant and defendant both said they had had to pay medical fees and the latter refused to pay compensation to the complainant.

His Worship:—Case remanded to the 22nd instant at 2.30 p.m. Evidence must be called and I should want the doctor to come to give evidence.

Tributes to Their Wives.

Lord Runciman's keen appreciation of the part played by his wife in building his great career recalls the words of two other famous men.

When Lord Reading retired from the office of Viceroy of India, he said of his wife: "I should be wanting if I did not say what a support she was to me. She encouraged me in my difficulties, and by her work amongst the women of India she did more to cure racial animosity than perhaps any work I could have done."

The other was Mr. Henry Ford: "If the British are the only people who can pioneer, it is because their wives go with them. Their idea of life is to be help-mates. real partners of their men, to build life with them. I know this from experience, because my wife was one of ten children of a British woman, who went to America when she was 15. We have been partners for more than forty years."

A Handful OF Chinese Street Literature

THE STORY TELLER AND HIS THOUSAND JESTS AND TALES

[By DR. C. J. VONKAMP.]

Who of us had not ever had a favourable opportunity to notice and to watch on the Chinese market-places my good friend the Schuo Schu Di, the Story-teller. You peer over a dense crowd of spectators and listeners, and then you observe a man, who as it is said in the Gospel, "bringeth forth out of his treasure new and old." To the Chinese the old is ever new, and the new never fails to be interesting. The news of the present civil war, the latest outrage by the bandits, and especially the hostile Japanese invasions are all interesting. The story-teller has been for centuries the newspaper-man of the crowded market-places of the vast empire. During the past Boxer-times the story-teller often was the agent-provocateur, and to-day, he may be in the pay of the Soviet. In the most cases, he will be a literary man "gone smash," who, as one of them explained to me, "the battle with the writing-brush, which is mightier than the sword, has been driven to rear."

Whatever his literary qualities may be, there is one quality, one skill, he must needs be clever to display, viz., to rivet the attention of his hearers, and to draw the copper-cash out of their pockets, otherwise the poor fellow must die of starvation. He must possess a strong never failing memory, a fan which most effectively will assist him in his gestures at the culminating points of his narrations, a pair of somewhat dark spectacles behind which there are two intelligent and observing eyes, and a clear modulating voice, combined with it, if this is possible in China, a distinct articulation. These are his necessary implements.

Keeps His Pigtail.

As far as possible in these leveling times of the revolutionary transition of China, our friend has kept his pigtail, which adds to the picture a fine interesting stroke of an historical past. Small wonder, that among the wandering people and minstrels and to me he has become an interesting figure, to whom I liked to listen, when long ago I began to study the language, or as Martin Luther would say, I had to listen to the talk of a cowherd to get the vernacular idiom. Still to-day these wandering folks and vagabonds of China, with their often so skilful conjurers, acrobats, gymnasts et omne gene, are gathered up under the ominous name of the Hun. But our friend the story-teller is not a Hing-Nu an "an evil slave," but there is floating around from the times of the grand and brilliant epoch of literature of the Tang emperors, a certain splendour when then he was playing his rôle on the princely courts of old China.

Let us return to the equipments of our story-teller. His black well kept pigtail seems to have grown with him into one living being. At some pathetic episodes of his narratives, the pigtail is hanging down mournfully and respectfully, then again it seems to rise up somewhat threateningly, and again it is nestling itself tenderly on the shoulders of its master, who angrily jerks it back with an energetic push. The fan in the hands of the story-teller seems almost to be a living object.

Someone has mentioned "the art of the language of the fan," and certainly it is an object which replaces the gestures of a great European actor. Either the fan is a writing-brush with which some imaginary Chinese character is written in the air or on the palm of the hand, which seems powerfully to impress the open-mouthed rustic standing close to him, or the fan is a threatening sword or one of those terrible jagged halberds, with which in the wars of past the bowels of an adversary were exposed. On the fan is lying in his uplifted hands like the Jade-sceptre of the Son of Heaven. And then again it will contemptuously be fixed behind the collar of the man's coat, where it will have a confidential chat with its comrade the pigtail, from whence in the next moment it will be drawn out as from a scabbard, in that inimitable attitude of an antique warrior, for, after all, our friend is a lay-actor, always on the stage, who as I heard one crying of his hero, he had, his head in the clouds, with his feet standing in the Ming dynasty.

Classic and Other Tales.

Our friend is there in the midst of a crowd on the market-place, standing on a low table as on a stage, holding forth with a sonorous voice, the envy of a member of a European parliament, above all, he must dispose of a quite inexhaustible treasure of stories, ballads, couplets, jokes, indecent jests, a never ceasing stream of pointed critical remarks on political affairs or social matters, drowned in the next moment by the citing of long sections sometimes from the books of history, at others parts from the Three Kingdoms, this "divine work of a literary genius," from the Hills and Sea Stories book, from the Liao Ch'ai, the collection of ghost stories, and the ghastly tales of the Hung Lu, the Red House. All this at the market, he is standing there in some quiet corner, the crowd is swelling around him to listen and laugh. The poor fellow must after all earn his bowl of rice in the South or his bowl of millet-soup in the North.

Never Failing Memory.

There is an interesting passage in the prophet Jeremiah of a forgotten harlot in the streets of Tyre: "Take a harp, go about the city thou harlot, that hast been forgotten, make sweet melody, sing many songs that thou mayest be remembered." But we may rest assured, our old minstrel does not show in his struggle for existence the faded and withered beauty. His once so clear and sounding voice may have become somewhat cracked and hoarse, from his never failing memory it will well forth with an amazing inexhaustibleness, and will even nail the feet of his audience to the spot where they are standing.

It is wonderful to observe how our friend is able to sharpen to the point of his narratives, so that they all gaze at him, spellbound. The eager expectation has reached its summit! Now the plot will be unravelled, the solution must be given! But he smilingly cuts short! His collection-plate is going round. If they do not pay, he will not play further—so they pay!

But after all, what is the fellow's line? I admit that for a Western ear it is hard to follow him, and if you happen to stand among the crowd, some sharp arrow of sarcasm and wit is aimed at you, and the laughing eyes of the multitude are turned towards you. Then I have put a ten cents piece on his plate and got a smiling bow in response. Then as a missionary I have asked him to allow me to tell a fine story of the "Holy Classic of the West," and told the story of the Prodigal Son.

As I have mentioned just before, our Schuo Schu Di is singing the newest couplets which in the fine and fashionable wine-shops of Canton, Shanghai, Tientsin and Peiping have lost their effect of novelty. For the Chinese, like all the Athenians of the wide world, prefer to spend their time in nothing else but telling or hearing some new thing. It is witty, often rude, not always indecent, and the Chinese classics, which are free from the obscene, may have some influence on these open-air speakers. Not so the indecent novels and works of fiction, written even by the court-ministers of the famous literary epoch of the Tang and Sung Dynasties and other dynasties, especially in their times of decline and decay. He may go back into the hoary times of antiquity, when our own ancestors still wore clad in their bear's skins, but China already had composed a cookery-book of over 120 volumes. And with a sort of alto mortale he is standing amid the vexing problems of the present times.

Many Roles.

Now he tells a tale where virtue is walking on stilts; now as an admirable actor he presents a burlesque, and you are hearing the deep and instructing voice of the husband, mingled with the squabbling screams of his jade-wife; the hard voice of the Mandarin in the court is passing a judgment, and then the rustic standing there, seems to wince, especially when he listens to the meanings of the beaten culprit. And soon after that, he draws his hearers back to those glorious times, when the gods were dining on the golden dishes; when they personally intervened in the miseries of life, when during the night-time doors were not closed, because there were no robbers and kidnappers, and property lost on the main-road was well guarded by the first wanderers passing by, till the next newcomer replaced him, who with a courteous gesture of the hand delivered the lost property to the anxiously searching owner. There can be no doubt, in those older times people were so good—so good and so boring—and I always wonder why the "golden heads" of Chinese history, Yao and Shun, had to introduce such terrible tortures and racks to punish their vicious subjects, and to-day the Wu Shan Movement, the "twilight of the gods" is weaving its dark veil over the whole nation, and its deep shadows are falling and growing with the night.

One of my friends at home, who in his leisure hours is studying Chi-

BIRD CRUELTY CASE ENDS

DEALERS HEAVILY FINED

The case in which two Chinese bird dealers were charged with overcrowding birds in cages was concluded at Central Magistracy yesterday when Mr. Wynne Jones fined one dealer $250 and a second man $100.

His Worship suggested that the inspector of the S.P.C.A. make it his business to visit some of the ships in which the birds are transported.

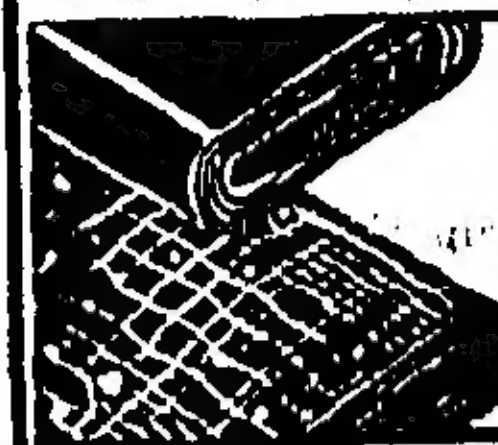

Inflicting the penalty, the Magistrate, said:—"The maximum sentence which I can give is a fine of $250. I think it is my duty to assess the fine on the basis of the profit which has been made by sending these birds in the way disclosed."

"We have been told here in Court that the freight per cage is one pound, roughly fifteen dollars. We have four boxes, and without in any way committing myself to fixing the number of birds that should be in a cage, I think everybody would agree there should have been twelve cages. They have saved $8 on that, which is $120."

His Worship said he thought a fine of that sum would not be sufficient punishment. Defendant was fined $25 in 1928 for precisely the same offence and the penalty appeared to have made no impression on the people responsible. The second defendant had one cage but he also had a previous conviction and "I don't think I can very well let him off under $100. I trust that both of you will see from this that I very strongly object to the manner in which these birds were overcrowded."

These script with remarkable success, made me some time ago buy for him a handful of Chinese street literature, sold by the "flying book-seller" at some corner of the street. I was amazed at the big handful bought for one dollar. From this my old friend of the Chinese market-place is drawing most of his material. I found in it all sorts of popular literature in rude block-printing often mixed with creaked and twisted, even false Chinese characters, which only could be deciphered by a magnifying glass. They contained remarkable literary products, Buddhist and Taoistic sermons and tracts, full of exhortation, and admonitions to the cursed, sinning world, issued by pious temple societies and benevolent associations to promote the decaying morals of the people.

"Blondie of the Follies," the latest Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer release at the Queen's Theatre Scheduled on Sunday is another example of what this producing firm can do in the way of combining excellent story with superb acting and direction.

Clever Direction Helps.

Edmund Goulding follows his triumph in "Grand Hotel" by another superlative example of direction. His was no mean task, covering a range of action which included glimpses of New York tenement life, backstage episodes parties in night clubs, luxurious apartments and on board a yacht. His attention to detail and his knowledge of comedy as well as dramatic values have, in this case, had an unusually happy result.

DEFECTIVE PARTY WALLS HOUSE OWNER SUMMONED

Lau Yuk King, the owner of houses 146 to 154, Third Street was summoned by the Building Authority for alleged non-compliance with a notice to remedy defective party walls at Central Magistracy yesterday.

After Mr. J. H. Bottomley of the P.W.D. had informed his Worship (Mr. Schofield) that Mr. H. J. Best, the complainant was in hospital, the case was adjourned sine die.

Mr. F. H. Loseby who appeared for the defence said:—

"I think it would be best, although I have a perfectly good defence, if we adjourned sine die. With a little give-and-take between my client and the Building Authority, we might be able to bring about an amicable settlement as the walls were not in danger."

Mr. Bottomley:—I don't agree with that, your Worship.

girls who graduate to popularity and luxury in the Broadway show world. It is the story of their departure from the poverty of their tenement environment, their journey in luxury, and their return home. But in the telling of that story Frances Marion, who composed it, and Anita Loos, who wrote the dialogue, have imparted strong drama and moments of high humour. The picture abounds in fine entertainment.

AGRARIAN PROBLEMS

Our former Governor, Sir Cecil Clementi, was earnest in his endeavours to encourage agriculture in the New Territories, and there is no doubt that he had the welfare of the village communities constantly in mind. Under his enthusiastic and personal support, and with no little material encouragement from Sir Robert Ho Tung, the New Territories Agricultural Association has done sterling work by aiding the farmers to overcome their worst difficulties. The need for some sort of organisation such as an experimental station is now realised by the Association, and not long ago Mr. J. Russell stated that the Committee were "thinking of acquiring a permanent piece of land for the use of the Association in promoting scientific agriculture." He also pointed out that the Committee is likewise considering the introduction of modern scientific methods as a safeguard against epidemics of cattle, pig and poultry disease. We believe that the Government has always unofficially given its blessing and support to the N.T.A.A., but we feel that it would be more to the point if it were to form a Commission to enquire into the state of agriculture in the New Territories and ascertain whether it would not be advisable to establish a research station where experiments could be carried out by an expert and scientific study made of the problems confronting the agriculturalists.

A Government Bureau of Agricultural Research, to conduct experiments into the production of fruits and vegetables in the New Territories and to give the native farmers and small-holders scientific advice regarding the care of their crops, would not only result in a greater prosperity for the village communities, but would make the Colony largely self-supporting so far as these commodities are concerned. The need for an organisation of this description is given a further impetus by the fact that the markets of Kowloon and Hong Kong are always stocked with oranges, pineapples, sugar cane and other local fruits grown in the New Territories, which clearly shows that the demand is wide and capable of expansion. There are (Continued on next column)

QUACKERY AND CURE-ALLS

INTERESTING LECTURE BY MR. M. F. KEY
AT UNION CHURCH HALL

"Quackery" was the subject of a lecture delivered at the meeting of the Young People's Society of Union Church, Kowloon, on Tuesday evening by Mr. M. F. Key, The Minister (the Rev. E. L. Allen) presided.

The lecturer explained that the compounding of drugs had its reputable and disreputable sides; his purpose was to deal with the aspect covered by the term, "quackery," of which he had obtained somewhat extensive acquaintance through attending a Parliamentary Committee appointed to enquire into the trade in proprietary remedies, in the year 1912. Owing to the intervention of the War, and now of the Peace (which politicians seemed to find even more difficult to manage than the War) nothing had been done in the twenty years which had elapsed to put into legislative action the recommendations of the Parliamentary Committee, which proposed close regulation of the trade and the suppression of its worst features. That the evil still continued unabated was clear from an examination of advertisements in popular newspapers.

The lecturer, taking a leaf out of the book of Sergeant Buzfuz, said he regarded a Hong Kong (or Kowloon) audience as above the average in intelligence and perhaps, on that account, it was unnecessary to warn people here against the extravagant claims of quack medicine vendors. However, the opinion was expressed, in evidence before the Parliamentary Committee, that the more educated classes are as easily gulled as the uneducated; it was also said that the clergy are ready purchasers, Nonconformists being specially addicted to secret remedies. (Laughter.)

Many examples were given to show that advertised "cure-alls" make claims of efficacy far above the medicinal value of their ingredients; they describe as the latest discoveries of medical science the simplest of drugs which have been in common use for years and charge exorbitant prices for ill-regulated mixtures of these drugs, sometimes putting in chemical substances which cancel out one another, or advertising utterly inefficacious medicines as certain cures for most serious diseases. Cancer, for example, for which the medical profession is still earnestly seeking a remedy, one quack medicine vendor undertook to cure with a mixture of sugar and water.

Reference was also made to the immense sums which are expended in the aggregate by proprietary medicine vendors in advertising, the result being that it was often difficult to obtain publicity for the facts with regard to their preparations. The philanthropist who sold pills "worth a guinea a box," but who was content to accept the odd shilling and waive the pound, admitted before the Parliamentary Committee that in one year he received £360,000 from the sale of 50 tons of the pills and spent £100,000 on advertising.

The lecturer read a delightful account from Mr. H. G. Wells's "Tono-Bungay" in which the hero and his uncle make Tono-Bungay "hum"—"We set out upon this bright enterprise of selling slightly injurious rubbish at one-and-three-halfpence and two-and-nine a bottle. . . . It brought us wealth, influence, respect, the confidence of endless people. Tono-Bungay carried me to freedoms and powers that no life of scientific research, no passionate service of humanity could ever have given." And again, "I still clung to the idea that the world of men was, or should be, a sane and just organisation, and the idea that I should set myself gravely, just at the fine springtime of my life to developing a monstrous bottling and packing warehouse, bottling rubbish for the consumption of foolish, credulous and depressed people, had in it a touch of insanity."

In conclusion, the lecturer expressed the view that the enlightenment of the public on the facts was the only immediate programme possible. The ultimate remedy was a new orientation of society under which men would not be always "on the make" at the expense of their fellows.

thousands of acres in the New Territories lying uncultivated, especially on the slopes of the hills, and with Government aid these could be made into fertile market gardens, supplying the Colony with all the fruit and vegetables it requires. To anyone with capital to invest the suggestion is worth serious consideration, and, though the Government might not be at first prepared financially to assist such enterprise, we imagine that it would be pleased to give all the help, encouragement and advice within its power. If private landowners were prepared to experiment at their own cost by establishing fruit farms in the Territories, we feel assured that if they were successful the Government would be prepared to draft a scheme on the lines we have suggested. To allow such a potentially productive land-area to lay waste is to neglect the opportunities that Nature has provided for our large and growing population.

We understand that the farmers are considerably hampered by their lack of transport organisation, as well as by the fact that they have no representative at the Kowloon and Hong Kong markets. Government assistance in these matters would help to invigorate agriculture in the New Territories, by ensuring for the farmers a fairer price for their goods than they are getting at present.

HONG KONG UNIVERSITY COMES OF AGE

SPECIAL 21ST ANNIVERSARY CONGREGATION

LARGE AND IMPRESSIVE GATHERING IN UNIVERSITY GREAT HALL

SPECIAL MESSAGE FROM THE PRINCE OF WALES

H. E. The Chancellor's Eloquent Plea For Support
For The University

YESTERDAY, MARCH 15, THE UNIVERSITY OF HONG KONG CAME OF AGE. A SPECIAL CONGREGATION WAS HELD IN HONOUR OF THE OCCASION DURING WHICH FIVE HONORARY DEGREES WERE CONFERRED—ON MONSIEUR G. COEDES, DR. R. W. BROCK, H.H. SIR JOSEPH KEMP, SIR SHOU-SON CHOW AND SIR WM. HORNEILL, VICE-CHANCELLOR OF THE UNIVERSITY.

FROM THE PRINCE OF WALES

The event was made the more notable by a special telegram from the most distinguished of the University's honorary graduates—H.R.H. the Prince of Wales whose message was as follows:

I offer to the University of Hong Kong of which I have the privilege of being an Honorary Graduate, my sincere congratulations on its coming of age and my best wishes for its future prosperity.

EDWARD P.

Another message was—

Heartiest good wishes continued success.

Lugard.

An impressive ceremony was staged in the Great Hall of the University. The gorgeous robes lent for the afternoon gave an air of antiquity and despite the crackers that signalled the joy of the undergraduates one could imagine oneself in one of the Halls of Oxford. Shortly before the congregation opened Lady Peel arrived, accompanied by H.E.'s A.D.C. At 5 p.m. the following procession moved slowly up the hall and the members were accommodated upon the stage.

The band of the 1st Battalion the South Wales Borderers played an excellent selection of music before the ceremonial commenced, by kind permission of Lieut.-Colonel G. T. Raikes, D.S.O., and Officers.

CONGREGATION
DECLARED OPEN

His Excellency the Chancellor, Sir William Peel, K.C.M.G., K.B.E., M.A., having declared the Congregation open, the Vice-Chancellor presented Monsieur G. Coedes, Dr. R. W. Brock, H.H. Sir Joseph Kemp and Sir Shou-son Chow for the Degree of Doctor of Laws (Honoris Causa) in the following words—

MR. GEORGES COEDES

Monsieur Georges Coedes was born in Paris on August 12, 1886. In 1911 he was nominated by the Governor-General of Indo-China to a research scholarship in the Ecole Française d'Extreme Orient, Hanoi. In 1914 he was appointed to the Chair of Indo-Chinese Philology in that School. In 1917 M. Coedes went on a research mission to Siam. About that time Siam declared war against the Central Powers and shortly afterwards by virtue of an arrangement arrived at as between the Government of Indo-China and the Government of Siam, M. Coedes became Director of the National Library in Bangkok in the place of Dr. Frankfurter. He held this post until 1929 and for the last four years of his tenure he combined it with the General Secretaryship of the Royal Institute of Archaeology, Literature and Fine Arts which was founded in Bangkok in 1925 under the Chairmanship of H.H. Prince Damrong. In 1929 he became Director of the Ecole Française d'Extreme Orient, at Hanoi—an institution which only 18 years previously he had as a young man of twenty-five joined as a research scholar.

M. Coedes has written extensively on the art and archaeology of Siam and of various parts of Indo-China. The Archaeological Collections of the National Museum, Bangkok, are his most conspicuous memorial.

M. Coedes is a Chevalier of the Legion of Honour, a Commander of the Royal Order of the White Elephant of Siam, Vice-President of the Research Council of Indo-China, Vice-President of the India Society, a Corresponding Member of the Archaeological Institute of the German Empire, and an Honorary Member of the Royal Scientific Society of Batavia.

In the list of those on whom this University first conferred its honorary doctorate of laws, the names of Paul Pelliot and Louis Finot are to be found. We count it an honour to be able to add the names of Monsieur Coedes to our roll of honorary graduates on which the names of his two illustrious predecessors are already inscribed.

DR. R. W. BROCK

Dr. Reginald Walter Brock was born in Perth, Ontario, in 1874. He was educated at the Ottawa Collegiate, and the Mount Forest High School, then at Toronto University and the School of Mining Kingston; in 1908 he was appointed Director of the Geological Survey of Canada; in 1914 he was Deputy Minister of Mines, Canada. When the War came, Dr. Brock joined the Canadian Expeditionary Force and served with the rank of Major in the 194th (Western Universities) Battalion of the 72nd Seaforth Highlanders. He subsequently became consulting Geologist to the Egyptian Expeditionary Force. Dr. Brock is now Dean of the College of Applied Science of the University of British Columbia, Vancouver; he is also Chairman of the Board of Advisers to the Royal Military College of Canada.

Dr. Brock has published reports on the Geological Survey of Canada, papers in various scientific journals; also a report on the Physical Basis of Canada and its Provinces. Dr. Brock is an Ex-Vice-President of the American Association for the Advancement of Science, an ex-Director of the American Institute of Mining Engineers, a Fellow of the Royal Society of Canada, and an ex-President of the Geological Section of that Society.

Some ten years ago the Government of Hong Kong decided to have a geological survey of the Colony. The Secretary of State for the Colonies was approached and Dr. Brock was recommended for the work. He saw that the whole survey would take more time than he could give to it, so he secured the permission of Government to have some of the work done, under his supervision, by his colleagues in the University of British Columbia.

Dr. Brock came here in the summer of 1923, made a reconnaissance and planned the work. In 1923/24 Dr. Schofield, Professor of Physical and Structural Geology, worked in detail on part of the area. The following winter, Dr. Williams, Professor of Palaeontology and Stratigraphical Geology, studied the sedimentary rocks of the Colony. In 1925/26 Professor W. L. Upton, Professor of Mineralogy and Petrography, studied the igneous rocks and secured the background for working out the petrography of the area. Professor Upton met with a fatal accident on his way back to Canada. This was a serious set back to the work. Dr. Brock was here again in the winter of 1926/27.

The scope of the work is the geological study of the entire Colony. The knowledge of a country's geology is essential to its intelligent development. Without a knowledge of the geology of an area its topography, its soils, its water supply, and its mineral resources, are all largely matters of conjecture.

This is practically the first detailed geological survey which has been carried out in China—a fact which alone makes the Hong Kong area classical ground in the geological world—a world which is awaiting Dr. Brock's completed report with great interest.

The field work of the Hong Kong survey is practically finished. Dr. Brock hopes to wind up his task and sail away on March 24. A good deal of office work will still remain to be done. This Dr. Brock hopes to accomplish in his Canadian home during the coming summer.

We account it an honour to this University to add to the list of its honorary graduates the scientist who is on the eve of giving to the scientific world the first geological survey of an area which is geographically a part of China—a field of unknown geological possibilities.

SIR JOSEPH KEMP

Sir Joseph Horford Kemp was born in Drogheda in 1874 and got his school education at the High School Dublin.

In 1891 he entered Trinity College, Dublin, but left almost immediately for South Africa. He was admitted to the Cape University at which University he secured the B.A. degree and the Porter University Studentship of £150 a year for three years in 1896. He then went to London University with the idea of reading for the L.L.B. for the purpose of entering the legal profession. However, in 1898 he sat for an Eastern Cadetship got one and chose Hong Kong.

As an ex-officio member of this University's Court Sir Joseph is temporarily a member of this University. When his name has been added to our roll of honorary graduates he will become a permanent member of this University which is, in point of fact, the fourth University which has had the honour of numbering Sir Joseph among its alumni.

At the Bar Final Examination Sir Joseph got a certificate of honour.

Sir Joseph arrived in this Colony on December 25, 1893. I will not rehearse all the offices he has held. He became Registrar of the Supreme Court in 1899, Crown Solicitor in 1911, and Attorney General in 1915. In 1918 he was made a Commander of the Most Excellent Order of the British Empire; in the same year he became King's Counsel. On August 1, 1930, he succeeded permanently to the Chief Justiceship of the Colony.

In 1920 the Government of Hong Kong appointed a Commission to enquire into the working of the University. Sir Joseph Kemp was one of the members of this Commission.

Sir Joseph Kemp's career has been an honourable one of unostentatious usefulness. His career in Hong Kong is very nearly ended. It is at once a pleasure and an honour to this University to confer upon Sir Joseph Kemp this mark of its esteem.

SIR SHOU-SON CHOW

Chow Cheong Ling, or as he is better known the Hon. Sir Shou-son Chow was born in Hong Kong 73 years ago. His earliest education he received in China, but in 1873 he was sent by the Chinese Government to America, where, after several years, he entered the Columbia University, New York, as one of the students of the Government of China. He returned to China in 1881, and was sent to Korea to assist in the organisation of the customs service of that country. Ten years later he was transferred by Yuan Shih Kai, late President of China, to the Consular Service. Yuan Shih Kai was then Chinese Minister resident in Korea and he continued in this post until the outbreak of the Sino-Japanese War.

Chow Cheong Ling then left for China and after occupying several positions he became Managing Director in Tientsin of the China Steam Navigation Co. He held that post for several years and was then appointed Managing Director of the Peking-Mukden Railway. When he gave up this post four years later, he received a testimonial from the European staff of the Railway acknowledging the high esteem in which he was held. He then came to Hong Kong as Customs and Excise Commissioner. This post involved a great deal more than work in connection with the collection of customs, for Chow had the responsibility of a territory of several hundred square miles and the control of all foreign intercourse in that area. On his subsequent recall by Prince Ching, he was appointed Councillor of the Foreign Office, Peking. He was offered a Ministership in Europe but this he declined; he felt that he needed rest and like a sensible man made up his mind to take it.

Sir Shou-son Chow is a J.P. and a member of the District Watchmen Committee. In 1920 he served on the Economic Reserves Committee; in 1921 he became an Unofficial Chinese Member of the Legislative Council, and in the same year he served on the Committee which investigated the question of the Industrial employment of Children. In 1922 he served on the Advisory Board of the Tung Wah Hospital and on the Chinese Public Dispensaries Committee; also on the Sanitary Board. In 1924 he became Associate Commissioner for the British Empire Exhibition at Wembley for the Hong Kong section. In 1926 he became a member of the Executive Council and in that same year His Majesty the King conferred on him the honour of Knighthood.

Sir Shou-son Chow has done much useful work for the Colony. He has also been a zealous supporter of the University on whose Court he has served for years. His good nature and his splendid sense of humour have won Sir Shou-son Chow many friends in many different communities.

The University is proud to admit him to the list of its Honorary Graduates. May he live long to enjoy this honour and to help the University by his ripe experience and his sound judgment.

VICE-CHANCELLOR
HONOURED

The Dean of the Faculty of Medicine then presented the Vice-Chancellor for the Degree of Doctor of Laws (Honoris Causa).

Mr. Chancellor I crave Your Excellency's permission to set forth the distinguished career of our esteemed Vice-Chancellor.

Sir William Horneill was born in London in 1878. He was educated at Radley and Trinity College, Oxford. In 1901 he was appointed to the Indian Education Service, and after working for a short time in the Presidency College, Calcutta, and as an Inspector of Schools in Bengal, he became Assistant Director of Public Instruction, Bengal, in 1908. He resigned the Indian Educational Service and joined the Board of Education, Whitehall in 1908. In 1910 Sir William was appointed Assistant Director of Special Enquiries and Reports under the Board of Education. In 1911 he acted as Secretary to the First Imperial Education Conference which was held in London. He went back to India in 1913 as Director of Public Instruction, Bengal, a post which he held until he came to Hong Kong in 1924, except for two years—1917/18—when he was a member of the Calcutta University Commission. In 1918 he was created a Companion of the Most Eminent Order of the Indian Empire. In 1921 His Majesty the King conferred upon him the Order of Knighthood.

Mr. Chancellor, I beg to request your Excellency to confer upon William Woodward Horneill, Knight Bachelor, Companion of the Most Eminent Order of the Indian Empire, a Master of Arts of the University of Oxford, and Vice-Chancellor of the University of Hong Kong, who has been found worthy, the degree of Doctor of Laws (Honoris Causa).

Having conferred this degree His Excellency stepped forward to address the gathering, it was, however, a full five minutes before he was able to speak so prolonged and enthusiastic was the applause from the students that greeted the conferring of a degree on their Vice-Chancellor.

The degrees were duly conferred by H.E. the Chancellor.

CHANCELLOR'S SPEECH

TRIBUTE TO THE FOUNDERS.

His Excellency the Chancellor addressed the gathering as follows—

Mr. Vice-Chancellor, Ladies and Gentlemen:

I esteem it a privilege to preside at this Congregation, which marks a notable stage in the history of this University. It has been a great pleasure to me to confer today honorary degrees on those gentlemen who have just received them, in recognition of their eminent services to this institution, to the Colony and to science. They have proved themselves fully worthy to have their names added to the distinguished list of honorary graduates of this University.

From the Prince of Wales.

The first and most illustrious name in that list is that of H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, and I am glad to inform you that I have received the following message from His Royal Highness—

THE NEXT MOVE?

WAR flames in the Far East have a habit of dying down as suddenly as they spring up. The Jehol defence has collapsed, and while Japan is quite prepared to advance within the Great Wall, there appears to be no great desire to take that step. Despite recent successes by the Chinese troops the lesson of the Jehol mountain passes is that if Japan wishes to take Peking and Tientsin she can do so without much difficulty. Many of the Chinese troops fought with great gallantry, but the inevitable deduction is that the Japanese military machine is more than a match for the Chinese armies. Mr. SUN FO, Mr. T. V. SOONG and Mr. WANG CHANG WEI have all admitted the seriousness of the defeat. If the peace had been held China's position at Geneva, and in the eyes of the world, would have been different. As it is the National Government has to consider whether the situation would not be worsened by further resistance, especially in view of the Communist rebellion.

If the tremendously important factor of national feeling and honour were eliminated there would be much to be said for a policy of cutting the loss of Manchuria, making peace and concentrating upon internal reconstruction. That is what other nations have done under similar circumstances. England, for example, after the War of American Independence, and France after 1870.

Without drawing undue inferences from recent statements of Chinese leaders, it would appear that developments on these lines are in mind. In Manchuria itself the overwhelming factor is the overwhelmingly Chinese character of the population. There is no separate Manchurian race, and, so far, no serious infiltration of either Japanese or Koreans. Sooner or later, according to the progress made by China herself, Manchuria will gravitate back to China, unless, of course, the Republic, following the example of Europe in the Dark Ages, breaks into a number of independent states.

China most inevitably turn to one of her two adjacent neighbours, Russia and Japan, once peace is declared and the task of reconstruction continued. The position of these Powers gives them an economic advantage that no fear of political danger can entirely counteract. Mr. WANG CHING WEI and Marshal CHIANG KAI SHEK, as disciples of SUN YAT SEN, may still favour a rapprochement with Japan, and the elimination of CHANG HSUEH LIANG whose pursuit of vengeance for his father's death has coloured Manchurian policy for the past three years, further makes for such development. One advantage of such an orientation is that it would be easier for the Chinese Government to keep Japan within bounds, by a judicious dalliance with America, Britain and Russia; than to escape the consequences of a whole-hearted acceptance of the crushing embraces of the Russian Bear. Russia is a dangerous proposition as China knows to her cost.

A Sino-Japanese entente would be no bad thing for the world. Once Japanese trade with China started again pressure enough would be brought to bear on the militarists to do nothing to create new disturbances. Trade breeds more trade, and Hong Kong would have its share of such revival. If Japan has full play in China she will cease to cause trouble elsewhere, and a beneficial use will be found for her energies and ambitions. Of a military alliance between the two there is no practical danger. As well might the world fear least Britain raise an army of a hundred millions from India. Immediate peace in the Far East cannot be expected. The sea is not safely still after a typhoon. But the country is war-weary, both of civil and foreign strife, and if the Chinese people are set upon peace and good order, they will make an end of warlords who have exploited them in times of precarious peace, and failed them in face of the foreign aggressor.

OBITUARY

MINING DIRECTOR

[BRITISH WIRELESS SERVICE.]

Rugby, March 14.
THE death has occurred in London of Mr. Leslie Urquhart, aged 58 years, Chairman of Russo-Asiatic Consolidated Limited. He was prominent a few years ago in the efforts to obtain for their original owners, large oil-fields then and now in Soviet possession. [Mr. John Leslie Urquhart, M.Inst.M.M., M.I.M.E., M.I.P.T., was a director of many mining concerns, including the New Guinea Goldfields. He studied mining engineering at Glasgow and Edinburgh Universities and at the Baku Oilfields, Caucasus. He owned and operated mining enterprises in the Ural Mountains, Siberia and Russia until the Bolshevik revolution in 1917. In 1908 he was awarded the Albert Gold Medal, First Class, by King Edward, and in 1910 was awarded the Silver Medal of the Royal Society of Arts.]

"NINE TILL SIX"

[TO THE EDITOR OF THE "HONG KONG DAILY PRESS"]

Dear Sir,—As Producer of "Nine till Six," allow me to express my sincere appreciation of the critique appearing in this morning's issue of your paper. Your general review of the play and the players will be read with extreme gratification by all concerned in the undertaking; but for my own part, I feel I cannot accept the full measure of applause you have given me, and must at least share with Miss Butterfield the criticism you have levelled against her interpretation of "Freda." The responsibility for that interpretation is entirely mine. Miss Butterfield is an amateur actress of more than ordinary ability; she places herself entirely in the producers' hands and is as capable of reproducing his ideas of a character, as any amateur it has been my good fortune to meet. If, in your view, her "Freda" is not as it should be, the fault lies with me.

Hospitable Clubs.

Foreign visitors to Olympia are sincerely appreciative of the action of several London clubs and associations in granting honorary membership to them and to their wives for the period of the Fair.

Among the clubs which have done this are the Royal Automobile, the Fortin and the Lyceum. The Overseas League and the English Speaking Union have acted in the same spirit.

A Hundred Miles at 200 m.p.h.

When the ordinary motorist thinks of a driver travelling at over 200 miles per hour he is liable to add the mental reservation that the speed is maintained only for a flash of time over a measured mile.

Sir Malcolm Campbell, who has just raised his own world's record by the further margin of 18 m.p.h., can certainly claim to have covered well over 100 miles at this tremendous velocity.

Since 1928 he has been making these records at regular intervals. Each full run accounts for some eighteen miles, and frequently several practice spins have preceded the record attempt.

A Noteworthy Advance.

He was disappointed with the maximum speed attained. So was the I.A.F. when it put up the world's air speed record. That is in the nature of things.

But when one considers the struggles that have gone on at Brooklands to raise the lap record by even a fraction of a mile per hour—the alarming extent to which resistance increases with each additional notch on the speedometer even at, say, 100 m.p.h.—this latest leap towards the 300 m.p.h. mark is remarkable.

Ferdinand's Birthday.

Ex-King Ferdinand of Bulgaria, who is at present in Egypt, celebrated his 72nd birthday on Feb. 27. He has lived in exile since 1918, when he abdicated in favour of his son Boris.

Most of his days in retirement have been spent in one of the minor palaces at Coburg, comfortable on the pension of £8,000 a year which Germany pays him as the price of his coming into the war on her side. The story runs that he was in Munich when the Hitler Fascists were clearing out suspected Bolsheviks and Jews. When a mob of mad Hitlerites saw him they exclaimed: "Look at the old Jew profitor. Let's kill him and pinch his car."

"I know I have a prominent nasal organ," drawled Ferdinand, "but I am no Jew. I am Tsar Ferdinand of Bulgaria—temporarily, alas! without a throne. The Fascists passed on, and did not even pinch" his car.

The master of a trading junk (No. A2813V) has reported to the Police that at 9.30 a.m. on Tuesday, the steam launch Fes Hing collided with the stern of his boat, doing slight damage. No one was injured.

A Chinese pedestrian, while walking along Queen's Road Central, yesterday at 2 o'clock in the afternoon, collapsed suddenly, falling heavily on the road. Despite prompt assistance, the man died within five minutes of his fall.

A report has been made to the Police by Mr. J. F. Wright of 228, the Peak, to the effect that while driving car No. 1780 along Queen's Road East, a Chinese suddenly ran across the road and was struck by the car. He was injured and taken to hospital but was not detained.

$275 a Line.

The sum of $20,000 to be paid to Mr. Winston Church for his new book works out at a shilling a word. But it is not the greatest amount ever paid.

For instance, there was one James Smith, the author of "Rejected Addresses," who met Mr. Strachan, the King's Printer, at a dinner party, and talked so brilliantly that Strachan forgot that he had the gout.

Next day Smith sent Strachan a jeu d'esprit of eight lines, which so pleased the King's Printer that he added a codicil to his will leaving the author £3,000.

This payment works out at $275 a line.

Col. Watts-Morgan.

The House of Commons has lost its deepest voice by the death of Col. Watts-Morgan. It hardly had so musical a bass as the late Sir Laming Worthington-Evans possessed; it sank to a lower profundity.

Watts-Morgan spoke rarely, but he had a pleasant way of barking an indignant comment sotto voce, which boomed like the triple voice of Cerberus blithely chasing in a dream an intrusive cat.

It is strange how few really musical voices are heard in Parliament. Of all ever heard there many liked John Redmond's best. It ceased the car. So in rather more feminine a way did George Wyndham's.

Notable Voices.

Ropebery's voice, for all its exquisite modulations, was a shade over-eloquent and refined. Asquith's had sonority, rising at great moments even to Olympian majesty. Snowden's engaging and disarming tones neutralised a sharp acidity of manner and word.

Lord Grey of Fallodon's is the evenest and the finest and the most compelling of belief—perhaps the finest character of all.

The Finest of All.

Gladstone's voice was "transfigured" by his tremendous personality; the more fastidious disliked the northern accent which it retained to the end. John Bright had an organ—a chapel-organ-voice, with all the stops.

But by general consent the most perfect voice of modern times was a lawyer's—Coleridge, L.C.J. Even to be sentenced by him was to receive a benediction.

LOOKING BACK 75 YEARS

The Editor of the Friend of China has been in Canton during the greater part of the week and has collected intelligence of a highly interesting character, which it is intended shall appear in his Overland Issue. We do not hint at the nature of it as we consider his zeal and industry ought to earn for him as his reward, the exclusive benefit of the news he has gleaned. The information he communicates may be relied upon and will be purged of the ridiculous and puerile twaddle in which our other overland Newspapers abound.—Hong Kong Daily Press, March 16th 1858.

Police Camera Experiments.

It is unlikely that Scotland Yard will follow the experiment of the Berlin police authorities and supply officers with pocket-camera for use at the scene of crimes and accidents.

Rigid economy prevents such experiments. Recently a scheme for taking a short film of all arrested motor bandits, in addition to the usual full and side-face photographs, was tabooed on these grounds.

The suggestion was the film should be "shot" as the prisoner ran across the police station yard, and as the only glimpse witnesses usually have of "smash and grab" yards is of men in a running position the scheme might have shown some results from the point of view of identification.

MR. CHURCHILL ON WAR DANGERS

PRESENT ANARCHY OF CHINA

(Special Air-Mail Service)

LONDON, Feb. 28.—Mr. Winston Churchill, addressing meetings at Buckhurst Hill and Wanstead last night, spoke of Britain's foreign policy to prevent war and of the dispute between China and Japan. He said that young people argued a great deal about whether they would fight or not if a war came. But there was no likelihood of a war in which Great Britain would be involved. Even if foreign countries went to war with one another, he knew of no reason why a wise and honourable foreign policy should not enable us to stand aside and prevent the fire from spreading. The Government had very rightly refused to extend our obligation in Europe or elsewhere.

Under the present constitution of the League of Nations we could not be forced into war against our better judgment of what was right or wrong. He thought the first duty of British statesmen was to make sure that we were not drawn into any war, and only their second duty was to try to prevent others from fighting, or to try to bring their quarrels to an end. The supreme interest of Great Britain was peace in our time. With that object our foreign policy should encourage France to keep a strong army, so that there was no danger of her being attacked by her neighbours.

Similarly British interests required us to keep out of the quarrel which had broken out in the Far East, and not wantonly throw away our old and valued friendship with Japan. It was the interest of the whole world that law and order should be established in the northern part of China.

Analogy With India.

The condition of China, plunged in a strange combination of anarchy and Communism, was the cause of boundless and inexpressible misery to her industrious people. China was in the same state that India would fall into if the guiding hand of Britain was withdrawn. He advised them to read a remarkable book about Chinese life called "The Good Earth," which showed the virtues and the sufferings of hard-working Chinese cultivators of the soil, and how happy they would be if they could only have impartial justice and the security for the fruits of their toil instead of being tortured by warlords, Bolsheviks and brigands of all kinds.

Our British interest was to secure the open door and a fair chance for our trade in all parts of China. A clear-sighted policy should be

BRITAIN'S AIR ESTIMATES

NO NEW UNITS PROVIDED FOR

[BRITISH WIRELESS SERVICE.]

RUCGY, March 14. THAT Britain ranks fifth among the world's Air Powers was admitted to-day in the House of Commons.

In presenting the Air Force Estimates, Sir Philip Sassoon, Under-Secretary for Air, said the contributions to economy made by the Royal Air Force had not been made without anxiety. Risk had had to be taken.

An apparent rise of £30,000 in the total of £17,121,000, concealed a reduction of £340,000, following the decrease of £700,000 last year.

No new units were provided for, although ten regular squadrons were still required to complete the modest programme approved as long ago as 1923. The decision to hold this ten-year-old programme in suspense for another year was a practical proof of the whole-hearted desire of the Government to promote a successful issue of the Disarmament Conference.

Pending the outcome of the conference they were once again prepared to accept a continuance of the serious existing disparity between the strength of the Royal Air Force and that of the air services of other great nations.

In terms of first line strength, the Royal Air Force stood to-day only fifth on the list of air powers, although at the end of the great war Britain had a larger number of aircraft than any other nation.

Important Gesture.

While air expenditure in Britain had shown a substantial decline since 1925, other nations had very largely increased their outlay on air services over the same period.

The decision, therefore, again to postpone overtaking the arrears on a modest programme deemed to be the minimum necessary in 1923, when the strength of the other air powers was considerably less than it is to-day was a gesture, the importance of which would not, he hoped, be overlooked.

The air policy of Britain was and had always been conspicuously moderate and unprovocative. Nevertheless, while air forces existed, air power was as vital to the British Empire as sea power and could not be neglected.

Peaceful Activities.

Reviewing the past year's work of the Royal Air Force, Sir Philip Sassoon referred to its many peaceful activities, mentioning, among other examples, conveyance of surgical teams in deserts of Iraq, carrying anti-cholera and anti-typhoid vaccines to remote native villages of the Persian Gulf, reconnaissance to give flood warnings in India and Iraq, the supply of food to famine-stricken tribes in Trans-Jordan, the discovery of uncharted reefs, locust fishing and conveyance of political officers and civil mails to isolated regions.

able to secure this. It was no use dragging the League of Nations into the Far East, where their influence could only be very small and where they had no means whatever of controlling events.

So long as the foreign policy of his Majesty's Government continued to be guided by sagacity and good will and was careful of British interests, he would give it his cordial support.

He was also in general agreement with the Irish policy of the National Government. No doubt they had made a mistake at the beginning when they rejected the Conservative amendment of the Statute of Westminster, which would have excluded the Irish Treaty from its provisions. That had probably led to Mr. de Valera's assumption of power. But since then the Government had acted justly, soberly, and firmly. Mr. J. H. Thomas had shown himself steadfast, and though he had his own way of doing things and saying things, he deserved public support and approval.

Rights of Ulster.

Mr. Churchill said he trusted that the Government would not admit any right on the part of Mr. de Valera even to raise with them the question of the incorporation of Ulster against her will in the Free State. So long as Ulster chose to link her fortunes with Great Britain the whole power of the Empire must be used to protect her citizens in their undoubted rights and liberties.

There was no danger of the Southern Irish starving. On the contrary they would have a glut, and if they liked to live a primitive rural life instead of what was called "modern civilization" that was for them to decide. Meanwhile it was the duty of our English farmers to produce without delay the food which we used to buy from Ireland, and there was no doubt they could do it very quickly under the shelter of the present duties or higher duties if necessary.

BERLIN, March 15. The French Ambassador, M. Francois Poincaré, called on Baron Von Neurath, Foreign Minister, and formally protested against the infringement of the Peace Treaty by the entry of Nazi "Storm Troops" into Kiel.

Sir Horace Rumbold, the British Ambassador conferred at length with Baron Von Neurath on disarmament.

Baron Von Neurath declared that Germany's attitude was unchanged, namely, that Germany was free to take necessary measures to ensure security unless other nations disarmed.

POLITICAL CRISIS IN AUSTRIA

TENSE SITUATION IN VIENNA

[THROUGH REUTER'S AGENCY.]

VIENNA, March 15. THE police prevented deputies entering Parliament after the Government's decision that the summoning of the National Council by the Deputy Speaker was unconstitutional.

Parliament and public buildings are being strongly guarded by troops and the situation is very tense.

A body of Socialists and pan-Germans who were already in Parliament before the arrival of the police, held a two minutes session presided over by the Deputy President, after which the House was prorogued in die, amid a storm of cheering for the Deputy Speaker and the Republic.

The Chief of Police subsequently notified the Deputy Speaker that the session was illegal.

S'HAJ PRESSMEN PEEVED

SEARCHED BY CHANG'S BODYGUARD

[THROUGH REUTER'S AGENCY.]

SHANGHAI, March 15. A SURPRISING incident occurred yesterday afternoon, when about forty Chinese newspapermen called on Marshal Chang Hwei Chang for an interview. The Marshal's bodyguard insisted on searching all the press representatives, presumably fearing that some might carry arms. This aroused strong opposition and they left the building without the interview to the dismay of the servants who vainly attempted to soothe the irate reporters.

OUR LONDON AIR-MAIL LETTER

The King Busy: Lord Methuen's Violin: Duke's Interest in Electrical Gadgets: Olympia to be Bigger and Better: A Triple Portrait: Queen at the Fair: King and London University: Exit Mr. Pybus: Mr. Oliver Stanley: Capt. Hacking.

(Special Air-Mail Service)

The King Busy.

During the spring and summer the King's public appearances will be more frequent than for some time.

Already he has many official engagements for the coming months, and others are under consideration.

It was revealed to-day that the King will perform the official opening ceremony of the new wing of the National Portrait Gallery on March 30.

Lord Dufferin, who presented the new wing to the nation, is expected to be back from America in time to attend the ceremony.

On June 23 the King will open the new South Africa House in Trafalgar-square.

Lord Methuen's Violin.

Famous soldiers usually die comparatively poor men, but the late Lord Methuen was an exception. That his estate amounts to over £165,000 does not, however, come as a surprise, since a few years before his death he turned it into a private company, with a capital of £150,000 in £1 shares and himself, Lady Methuen and one of their sons as directors.

His Stradivarius violin, which has been left to his daughter, is a reminder of Lord Methuen's love for music. His musical knowledge was considerable and he gave detailed instructions of the music to be played and sung at his funeral.

Such tastes are rare among officers of the Brigade, though that brilliant composer, Arthur Bliss, was a captain in the Grenadiers.

Duke's Interest in Electrical Gadgets.

The Duchess of York paid an informal visit to the new headquarters of the Electrical Association for Women in Regent Street, London, yesterday, and spent about an hour in an all electric kitchen, which is one of the features of the new premises. She was interested in all the newest labour-saving devices.

The Duchess was shown how to repair a frayed flex. "My husband ought to have been here," she said. "He loves playing about with switches and things like that."

Olympia to be Bigger and Better.

London suffers from having no connected group of exhibition buildings where its biggest shows can be held. The British Industries Fair has to be divided between Olympia and the White City, and the great motor show, although not now held in two places since Olympia was extended, is already straining Olympia's capacity. There are periods of the year particularly desirable to the promoters of big trade exhibitions, and a place for two large exhibitions at the same time is often required.

The management of Olympia have now a scheme to extend the buildings to double the present accommodation, and for that purpose have acquired a site on the Addison Road side, which will involve moving the present railway station there to a new site in the centre of the exhibition buildings, but connected of course with the street. Mr. Joseph Emberton, who designed the Olympia extension in Hammersmith Road on novel and rather grim modernist principles, will be responsible for the new buildings that will cover an area of 7½ acres, with a long frontage to Hammersmith Road and Warwick Road, and the former frontage will be recessed to provide space for cars and taxi-cab ranks.

The new great hall will have two galleries with the largest roof span in Europe. Its front elevation will have a resemblance in the proportions and curve of the roof to the Central Station in Manchester. It is stated that the whole extension scheme will cost about a million and a half pounds, and that it will provide employment for about 2,000 men for two years. The new building will be 525 feet long, 350 feet wide, and 120 feet high, and it will only have fourteen supporting columns.

A Triple Portrait.

An unusual oil painting has been loaned by the King from the Hampton Court collection for display at the British Theatrical Exhibition, at Dudley House. It is one showing John Lacy, a noted dramatist and actor of the seventeenth century, in three character studies, and the artist has portrayed his subject in the form of a group which, at first sight, appears to be composed of three separate men conversing together. It is only the similarity of the features which reveals the true nature of the portrait. The exhibition, which is to be opened on Thursday by Princess Louise Duchess of Argyll, is a most interesting insight into theatrical customs and methods of former times, including as it does models of famous old stages, the actual costumes worn by celebrated players in equally celebrated roles, ancient play-bills, and letters dealing with such matters as the window tax on Drury Lane Theatre in 1716.

Queen at the Fair.

The tour on which I followed the Queen at the British Industries Fair on Feb. 23 impressed me as not simply an indication of royal patronage of a national effort to hasten the return of prosperity writes a home correspondent, but of personal interest in a display which has something in it for everyone, and especially for every woman.

Her Majesty is never satisfied with a cursory survey of Britain's shop window. This is evidenced by the fact that though she spent almost four hours at Olympia she is returning on Thursday for a further tour of the stalls, while to-morrow she will be at White City to see the remarkable range of textiles and furniture on view there. Three such days of walking amid a bewildering variety of products is a task that would be exhaustively tiring to anyone, but it is one that the Queen carries out with that unstinted delight in giving pleasure which is such a marked and inalienable feature of her welcome public appearances.

King and London University.

It was announced on Feb. 23 that the King is to lay the foundation stone of the new University of London buildings.

The ceremony has been fixed for June 26, and his Majesty will be accompanied by the Queen.

The construction of these buildings represents what has been described as the most important architectural work of the century. When they are completed there will be a wonderful new university town, as a coherent whole, in the very heart of London.

It is estimated that the project will cost £3,000,000, and, although twenty or thirty years must elapse before all is completed, the essential parts of the structure will be open in good time for the celebration of the University's centenary in 1938.

Exit Mr. Pybus.

The Prime Minister received "with great regret" the resignation of Mr. Pybus from the Ministry of Transport.

This regret is not shared by the Conservatives, and I do not think it is shared by Mr. Pybus himself.

The Conservatives were indignant because of the too generous apportionment among Simonites of the Government seats vacated by the Samuelites.

The appointment of a Conservative to succeed the Simonite Mr. Pybus has given them pleasure.

As for Mr. Pybus himself, surely he must feel like Christian when the burden rolled from his back. Rarely has a man gone into office so well-equipped to fight but with so little fighting ability. If Mr. Pybus possessed the capabilities which his office demanded he was singularly reluctant to display them.

Mr. Oliver Stanley.

The Ministry of Transport will not lose by the appointment to its control of Mr. Oliver Stanley.

Since he became Under-Secretary at the Home Office he has shown himself to have both administrative and Parliamentary ability above the average. And he is firm and clear-headed when decisions are called for.

He goes to his first Ministry at a moment when many grave problems are awaiting solution. His many admirers in the Conservative party will expect him to grapple with them vigorously.

Captain Hacking.

The second of the new appointments—that of Capt. Douglas Hacking to the second position at the Home Office—will be hailed as a well-merited choice.

Capt. Hacking was more than a little unlikely not to be included in the National Government from the outset. But the necessity for maintaining party balance within the fabric made it inevitable that some Conservatives should be passed over.

He has previous experience in this same office to which he now returns. That was from 1926 to 1927, and from there he went to the Department of Overseas Trade for a time to the Treasury Bench another two years.

GREAT ART SALE TO TAKE FOUR DAYS

FINE CHINESE POTTERY WINKWORTH COLLECTION 17th CENTURY WALNUT

(Special Air-Mail Service)

LONDON, Feb. 28.—A collection of the finest Chinese pottery and works of art will be sold at Sotheby's at the end of April. It was formed by Mr. Stephen D. Winkworth, and for years had been at Craven Hill Gardens, London. It will take the auctioneers four days to disperse.

An outstanding feature is a very rare vase of the Ming period (middle of the fifteenth century), while there is a large "Yen Yen" vase which would, in better financial times, find bidders going up to thousands of pounds.

Standing 28 inches high, the vase is brilliantly decorated round the body and neck with large flowering peony trees. Almost every class of Chinese pottery is represented in the Winkworth collection, and it represents a cost of many thousands of pounds.

Rare Furniture.

Supporting it are excellent specimens of English and Irish glass and fine old English furniture. The old English long case and bracket clocks are by the earliest makers. A Charles II. bracelet clock was made by "Henry Jones in the Temple."

The examples of furniture are principally in walnut of the seventeenth and early eighteenth centuries.

There is a great assemblage of Sheraton, Chippendale tables, stools, and chairs. The hammer will have to fall 800 times to disperse Mr. Winkworth's life's work of bringing together beautiful things. The auctioneer's task will take 20 hours.

CAPTAIN SASSOON—£8,300 ESTATE

AMATEUR RIDER BELIEVED TO BE MILLIONAIRE

(Special Air-Mail Service)

LONDON, Feb. 28.—Captain R. E. Sassoon, the amateur rider, was described as a millionaire when he died of injuries following a fall when riding his horse, Clear Note, in a race at Lingfield Park in January.

To-day his will was made public. He left estate in his own disposition of £8,307 gross with net personalty of £2,246.

Capt. Sassoon was the only son of the late Meyer Sassoon, of Hamilton-place, W. Probate of his will has been granted to his sister, Mrs. Violet Leath Fitzgerald, of Hill-street, Berkeley-square, W.

Mr. Sidney Charles Hood, of St. Helen's-place, E.C., having renounced probate.

In his will Capt. Sassoon stated: "I give, devise and bequeath all my real and personal estate whatsoever unto my sister absolutely."

His address is given as Jinkee road, Shanghai, China.

Few amateur riders in recent years have been so popular as was Capt. Sassoon. "Come on, the captain!" was a familiar cry.

During the past seven years he had spent £50,000 on racehorses.

His greatest ambition was to win the Grand National. In 1927 he finished seventh on Ballystockart. He tried the following two years, but without success.

His 3100-guinea horse Newsboy fell in the 1930 National; in 1931 he failed on Pixie.

Competitors in the open championship events, of whom only a few survivors remain, enjoyed a respite in the Hong Kong Cricket Club tournament yesterday when a programme of handicap matches was carried through. The keenest tie of the day proved to be in the Doubles Handicap in which Marton and Evans beat A. D. Humphreys and R. K. Valentine after some spirited play. The latter pair conceded slight handicap, which made the run of play even, but after holding their own until 7 all in the opening set, they fell off slightly, and in the second set although keeping close to their opponents had to yield at 6-4.

Y. HACHIUMA

who appears this afternoon in the Open Doubles Semi-final. He has shown considerable improvement in his game generally, and is expected to give a good account of himself.

The match between Bowker and Armstrong in the Handicap Singles, "A" produced a series of hard hitting exchanges in which both seemed to delight, the former, however, winning comfortably.

RESULTS

The scores of yesterday's matches follow:—
Handicap Singles "A"
A.C.I. Bowker (owe 3/6) beat H.

J. Armstrong (owe 5/0) 6-3, 6-2.
Handicap Doubles.

C. C. Stark and J. H. Mayhew (owe 3/0) beat J. J. Waite and W. M. Morgan (owe 3/6) 3-2, 6-2.
O. E. C. Marton and N. Evans (owe 15) beat A. D. Humphreys and R. K. Valentine (owe 15.2) 9-7, 6-4.
A. J. Stocker and M. F. H. Waring (owe 15) beat A. H. Penn and V. R. Gordon (sec.) 6-3, 6-2.

TODAY'S MATCHES

The principal match this afternoon is the semi-final of the open doubles. Also on the cards is the first semi-final in the Club Championship between R. H. Wild and Denis H. Hazell, which is expected to produce a good struggle. By their success in eliminating Ho Ka Lau and Yew Man Kit, ex-interceptors, in the first round, Leonard and Hachiuma, the young Craigengower pair, have placed themselves in opposition against the Hachiuma cousins to-day in the second semi-final of the Open Doubles Championship of the Colony. Forecasts in most quarters indicate a win for the latter. The new semi-finalists, however, should feel assured that they enter the court this afternoon with the warm support of the spectators, and whatever the result of the match, I am sure, their efforts will be appreciated. The Hachiumas have beaten stronger pairs and so are very likely to beat them also, but if they can produce form, the match should at least be worth watching.

The match commences at 4.15 p.m.

LENTEN SERMON

PARABLE OF THE SCULPTOR'S CHISEL

Taking as his text the following three portions of Scripture—"It became God to make the Captain of their salvation perfect through sufferings" (Heb. 2. 10), "Though He were a Son, yet learned He obedience by the things which He suffered" (Heb. 5. 8) and "God dealeth with you as with sons" (Heb. 12. 7), the Vicar of St. Andrew's Church, Kowloon, continued his series of sermons on "The Mystery of the Cross" on Sunday.

Last week, under the heading of "The Law of Retribution," stress was laid on the fact that men reap what they sow—material or spiritual. God's reward to His children is not earthly comfort and prosperity, but character, fitting them for fellowship.

The Law of Retribution does not explain Christ's sufferings. He endured all, even the agony and shame of the Cross, for the joy which lay beyond.

Another Aspect.

Now we come to another aspect; suffering as discipline. Christ, the appointed head of our race, the ideal man, was made perfect by means of suffering. Early in His ministry, as soon as His disciples woke to the consciousness of His Messiahship, He told them the Son of Man must suffer. And He did suffer. He, Who is Love, was misunderstood, slandered and thought crazy, even by His friends. He, Who is Truth, was called a liar. He, the Son of God, was called a servant of Beelzebub. He always forsook the Crucifixion and lived His life under the shadow of the Cross.

Michael Angelo.

This brings us to our subject for this week—"The Sculptor's Chisel." "In the rough marble beauty hides unseen."

It is said that Michael Angelo, the Sculptor, saw a block of marble that some less skilled hand had sought to carve and failed, and from it produced one of his greatest masterpieces. His eye saw the possibilities of the discarded block. So God sees in His children hidden and undeveloped gifts and graces and He uses the chisel of suffering and sorrow to shape the character.

Christ Himself endured this discipline, by which He was fitted for His High-priestly office as the Saviour of men. "In that He Himself hath suffered being tempted, He is able to succour them that are tempted."

Adversity tests and shapes the character; it produces sympathy, fortitude and courage. No character is tested and developed without suffering.

Is this a hard and joyless view of life? What of the gospel message as "good tidings of great joy"?

It is true that Christ offers a present joy, not the possibility of a future one to be gained by present suffering. The New Testament continually strikes the note of joy.

Effect of Suffering.

The effect of suffering on us depends upon our attitude towards it. Men have borne cheerfully all kinds of hardship and suffering and even death itself, because of the goal they had in view. The discipline of training for a race, or the hardships of a journey to the North Pole are welcomed for the sake of the prize. It was for the joy that was set before Him that Jesus endured the Cross, despising the shame. As we enter into its purpose, so we see it rather as a crown of glory than as vindictive punishment or unlucky chance.

Whether we are regarding our own sufferings, or those of others—sometimes far harder for us to bear—let us conquer by accepting, even as Christ did.

"Measure thy life by loss instead of gain."

Not by the wine drunk, but the wine poured forth;

For love's strength standeth in love's sacrifice;

And whose suffers most hath most to give."

The Marriage
ofThe
"White Horse"

"WHITE HORSE" is Real Old Scotch. First matured and then blended, it is again matured and re-blended, so that the whisky becomes properly married. This marrying of "WHITE HORSE" is a very lengthy process and the result is a right noble spirit of subtle and distinctive aroma and bouquet, soft, smooth and very pleasing to the palate, without a trace of kick or bite.

As a heart tonic and digestive, "WHITE HORSE" stands supreme. It is the brand most favoured by Scotsmen at home and abroad and they are the greatest connoisseurs of whisky. Could you make a wiser choice when choosing whisky for yourself?

THE "BATA SHOE" CASE.

Withdrawal Of Charges By Both Parties

SENIOR OFFICIAL INTERVENES

Applications for the withdrawal of the charges against Mr. Carol Tomesh and Mr. Carol Weiss, of the Bata Shoe Company were made by the solicitors of both parties before Mr. Wynne-Jones at Central Magistracy yesterday.

It will be recalled "that at the previous hearing, Mr. Tomesh, the manager of the Company, accused Mr. Weiss of the theft of a diary and private papers from his residence at Felix Villas, but, prior to the case being heard, Mr. Weiss swore a warrant of arrest against Mr. Tomesh on a charge of embezzlement and fraudulent conversion of $36,000 said to have been received by Mr. Tomesh on account of the Bata Shoe Company.

Mr. D. B. Evans appeared for Mr. Tomesh and Mr. Horace Lo represented Mr. Weiss.

In making the application on behalf of his client, Mr. Evans said that since the last hearing, an official of the Company superior to both Mr. Tomesh and Mr. Weiss had arrived from Shanghai, and by his helpful intervention things had taken a friendlier tone. His client was now satisfied that when the letters and papers taken from him by Mr. Weiss the act was done in good faith.

Speaking on behalf of Mr. Weiss, Mr. Lo said that "Mr. Lanker, the Inspector, whom my friend has mentioned is desirous that the whole matter be thrashed out in the head office and for that reason I am asking your Worship to withdraw the case."

The applications were granted.

THE HONG KONG ELECTRIC CO., LTD.

Net Profit of $1,850,000 in 1932

Record Increase in Earnings Reported

A very good year's working was reviewed by the Chairman of the Hong Kong Electric Co., Ltd., at the forty-fourth annual meeting of the Company which was held at P. & O. Building yesterday.

The Hon. Mr. C. G. S. Mackie (Chairman of Directors) presided, and was supported by Sir Robert Ho Tung, Kt., the Hon. Sir Shou-son Chow, Kt., Mr. T. E. Pearce, Mr. J. P. Warren (Directors) and Mr. J. Douglas Butcher (Manager). Shareholders present were Mr. J. Douglas Davies, V. D. Sorby, F. L. Brown, La Kai Wing, Leung Fatlin, L. E. Oxorio, Leung Shin Lau, Frank Austin (representing A. J. David), C. B. Johnson, Chan Shu Ming, T. N. Chan, Col. E. S. Doughty, Leung Yan Po, Wong Ping Sun, B. Wong Tape, Yu Chung Sun, W. H. Choy, Tong Kim Kwong, Chua Seng Choo and H. R. Forsyth.

1,600 NEW METERS CONNECTED

CHAIRMAN'S SPEECH

The Chairman said:—Gentlemen: The Net Profit after providing for Depreciation is $1,857,768.83 and with the sum of $136,338.11 brought forward from last account we have a sum of $1,994,106.94 for appropriation, and with this we propose:—

To pay a dividend of $2.50 per share absorbing $1,125,000.00
To pay a bonus dividend of $0.25 per share absorbing 112,500.00
To place to reserve 600,000.00
To carry forward to next account 156,602.94

Your Directors feel justified in recommending the payment of a bonus distribution in view of the successful year's working and I hope it will meet with your approval.

The profit on working exceeded that for 1931 by $256,507, an increase of 10.23 per cent. which is I think highly satisfactory.

The gross earnings show an increase on last year of $103,678, and in view of the general depression this improvement is I think another satisfactory feature of the year's operations.

Increase in Depreciation.

You will notice the figure for depreciation is considerably increased, and this is partly accounted for by the inclusion in this item of half a year's depreciation on the new station plant at North Point, and the complete writing off of our old main switchboard. In addition, we have included a figure to provide for obsolescence of the original low pressure plant which in a few years will be replaced by more up-to-date plant. After allowing for this extra depreciation we have a Net Profit of $158,723 in excess of that for the previous year.

Two new items appear on the credit side of profit and loss account representing profit from the investment of surplus funds. These are profit on sale of investments $5,100, and dividends on investments $7,420. As the Bank rate of interest was so low we decided to invest our surplus funds in suitable local stocks. It will be noted in the balance sheet a sum of $104,178 still remains so invested and the market value of these shares at the end of the year showed an appreciation in value.

The output showed an increase of some 1,141,381 units and enables us to present a balance sheet that establishes a record for earnings and net profit. The number of new meters connected during the year was 1,604.

You will observe on the Assets Side of the Balance Sheet, land has increased by nearly a lakh of dollars. This is due to the purchase of new sub-station sites in the thickly populated area to the West of the City where the consumption is rapidly growing beyond the existing sub-station capacity.

The expenditure on buildings includes the cost of the rebuilding of Wong Nei Cheong sub-station to provide additional distribution plant and quarters for a European Main Engineer.

New Plants.

A note appears showing our commitments under contracts for new plant not included under the usual heading, amounting to $5,763, which represents the balance of instalments due on the high pressure plant erected during the year under review. This shows a large reduction on last year's figure as payments were made during the year, of instalments as they fell due.

Goods in transit show a considerable decrease, and represent stores on hand at the date of the balance sheet, for which our London representative had paid.

Sundry debtors have decreased by $54,799, mainly due to the lower balance in the hands of our London agent.

The new high pressure plant was put into commission about the middle of the year and has generated some 20 millions of units up to the end of the year.

I am glad to be able to say the added efficiency which we expected to obtain from this plant has been fully borne out in the results. We are proposing to add a further high pressure boiler to the plant during the coming year.

I should like to take this opportunity of recording your Directors' appreciation of the services rendered by the manager, staff and workmen.

SECONDER'S SPEECH

Mr. C. Bulmer Johnson, in seconding the proposal said:—Mr. Chairman and Gentlemen, I have listened with very great interest to your speech and I would like to congratulate you on being able once again to present a record balance sheet.

I have little doubt that shareholders will endorse the Board's proposal to pay a bonus dividend, which I think is fully justified in view of the excellent result of the year's operations.

I am pleased to note that it is the intention of the Board to add a further high pressure boiler during the current year. Whilst not professing any great technical knowledge I am convinced that modern and up-to-date machinery ensures economical and efficient

SINCERE'S YAUMATI BRANCH

DOLLAR SILK DEPARTMENT OPENED.

A Dollar silk department has been added to the Sincere's Dollar Store, Yaumati. Real Chinese silks of various values and numerous designs will be sold there but the cost of same will not exceed a dollar. With the spring very much in evidence and everyone's thinking of new dresses for the sunny days, the new department hopes to do a brisk trade.

Kowloon Daily becomes more important to the colony and the Sincere's Yaumati branch opened in the year 1919 does not lag behind the times. To provide suitable space for the new silk department slight alterations in the arrangements of the store have been found necessary and instead of the 10c, 20c, 30c, etc. up to the value of one dollar stalls, there are now 10c, 25c, 50c, 75c, and dollar departments. These new bargain counters should prove more attractive as they offer a wider scope and provide easy access to the commodities displayed. Many new spring lines and novelties are now for sale at really attractive prices.

A visit to the store is to be recommended but telephone orders are given prompt attention and Kowloon residents are invited to just ring through for their requirements which will be executed with every care.

running. For this reason alone I heartily endorse the decision to make adequate provision for depreciation of the older plant.

The most satisfactory feature of your speech, Sir, is to my mind the continued increase in the output, which furnishes an excellent answer to the allegation that this Company has reached saturation point.

Such results as you have placed before us reflect great credit on all concerned, particularly on us (this Company supplies current for both lighting and heating at rates that compare very favorably with any place in the world. I offer my congratulations to the Directors, Agents and Staff on another very successful year. I trust the Company suffered no great loss in the recent fire at Powells Building. The report was passed unanimously.

Other Matters.

On the proposal of the Hon. Mr. T. N. Chau and seconded by Mr. F. Austin, Sir Robert Ho Tung and the Hon. Mr. J. J. Paterson were re-elected directors.

Messrs. Linstead & Davis were re-elected auditors on the proposal of Mr. Wong Ping Sun and seconded by Mr. Leung Yan Po.

EDWARD P.

WE HAVE ALSO RECEIVED
THE FOLLOWING TELE-GRAM FROM LORD LUG-
ARD:—

"Heartiest good wishes continued success. Lugard."

I do not propose to dwell on the history of this University; it is adequately dealt with in the interesting Souvenir prepared by the Vice-Chancellor, the entire cost of which, I may say, has been generously defrayed by Mr. Tang Shiu Kin.

This institution was incorporated under a local Ordinance in 1911, and was opened in 1912
twenty-one years ago. At the outset it met with substantial sympathy from China. Generous subscriptions were received from the then Viceroy of Canton, the Government of China, and various Chinese communities in China and elsewhere.

Lord Lugard's Services.

Lord Lugard, who may be regarded as the founder, was one of the most notable of the Governors of this Colony—a man of long vision and a fine grasp of essentials. He saw the value of promoting a still better understanding and friendship between the British and the Chinese, and in the establishment of this University envisaged the attainment of that aim. I think that considerable success in that direction has been achieved.

In his inaugural speech on the occasion of the opening of the Hong Kong College of Medicine for Chinese on October 1, 1927, Sir Patrick Manson said, "I do not suppose the 'secrets of commerce' will ever pass from Hong Kong,
but her importance and her glory will be greatly enhanced when she becomes the centre for science and letters." Lord Lugard himself never hesitated to proclaim that upon the Colony of Hong Kong devolved the duty of upholding the name and fame of the British in the Far East.

The conduct of affairs and the general administration of this Colony, based as they are to a large extent on Western models and those of our great Colonial Empire, cannot I think but be of interest to our great neighbour, China, and in this picture our University looms large. That it commands considerable interest and appreciation in China is evidenced by the number of students who come to it from that country. Of the 385 students now in the University, 82 per cent.
are Chinese, many of whom belong of course to this Colony. We have students from practically every province in China. We want more of them, however, for that is one of the objects for which the institution was founded.

Great Evolution in China.

I used to accept Kipling's dictum,
"East is East and West is West, and never the twain shall meet."
But the world has undergone great changes, and I find myself now unable to subscribe to that view. East and West have been drawn into close contact in many directions.
We have learned much from one another, and there is greater understanding and sympathy; but there is still a long way to go. A great evolution has taken place in China of recent years, but the ideal unity aimed at has not yet been attained, and many thoughtful Chinese support a movement of frank and searching enquiry into the philosophy and faith that lie
at the base of Western sciences, Western education and Western politics. In that direction the University of Hong Kong, as a trainer of youth, can give a helping hand if the aims and ideals which led to its foundation are maintained.

It is essential to maintain the high standard which it has set.
The degrees which it confers command considerable respect and, as pointed out by the Vice-Chancellor in his speech at the Congregation last January, the graduates of this University who have gone to England to continue their education have created a very good impression.

The University Must Go Forward.

If, however, the University is to maintain its position and prove itself the bright lamp of learning which was the dream of its founder, it must move with the times and with world progress. It cannot stand still; it must go forward or it will inevitably go back. Further development is essential, and the necessities more funds. In spite of the Boxer Indemnity and the increased Government subvention, it has been very difficult to do much more than maintain what we have.
Some improvements have been effected, but little real development has been possible during the past few years. The reduction in the normal rate of interest on investments has hit us very heavily, and unless further financial help is forthcoming the future prospect is discouraging.

In the past the University has received substantial help from generous donors, and though it is always invidious to select names, I should like particularly again to record the thanks of the University to the following:—

Sir Homajee Mody, Mr. Ng
Li Hing, Messrs. John Swire and Sons, The China Association, H. E.
Chan Jen Chung, Viceroy of Canton, Sir Kai Ho Kai, Mr. Ho Kam
Tong, Sir Robert Ho Tung, Sir
Paul Chater, Mr. Kwok Siu Lau,
Mr. Chan Wing and Mr. Lai Wing
Choo of Kuala Lumpur, Mr. Fung
Ping Shan, Mr. Tang Chi Ngong,
The Rockefeller Foundation.

Recently we have had valuable assistance from certain British firms, who have taken in some of the University's engineering graduates as student apprentices. These firms are the British Thomson-Houston Co., Ltd., the Metropolitan Vickers Electrical Export Company, Messrs. Norris, Henty and Gardners, and Messrs. Crossley Brothers, Ltd. The Dorman Long Associates (China), Ltd., have also expressed their readiness to secure such graduates as apprentices. The University is also indebted to Messrs. Alfred Holt and Co., Ltd., and Messrs. John Swire and Sons, Ltd., who have given a certain number of free passages to graduates going to England to such posts.

I realise that times are bad, but a considerable amount of capital has come into the Colony during the past few years, largely owing to the stability and security enjoyed here, and I feel that I am fully justified in expressing a hope that, if only as a mark of gratitude for benefits obtained, a substantial part of this capital will be invested in the University. I feel sure that such investment will give a valuable return, not only in developing happy relations between the Colony and China, but also in advancing the prestige and prosperity of the Colony.

Before setting out the most urgent needs of the University, I should like to refer to the question of the teaching of the Chinese language and literature. The Vice-Chancellor in his Souvenir has dealt at some length with this question, so I will not take up much of your time with it. When I first came here this question was already beginning to be acute, and caused myself and the Vice-Chancellor in particular, a considerable amount of anxious thought. We clearly realised that not only was adequate facility for the study of Chinese language and literature desirable in the University, but it was a statutory obligation. Briefly it was decided that the School of Chinese Studies did not fulfil the hopes that were centred in it. There was no doubt that it did not sufficiently meet modern needs, and it was abolished at the unanimous suggestion of a very representative committee. It has been decided to include the study of the Chinese language and literature in the University curriculum, making it an optional subject in the Arts course, and it is proposed to give further facilities for advanced work in this subject to those who may wish to proceed with it. A sum of $200,000 was subscribed by Chinese towards the School, but certain leading Chinese, who could rightly be regarded as representative of the subscribers, agreed that this sum should be allocated to the cost of teaching Chinese as part of the Arts course.
This sum however does not produce enough income to pay for the whole annual cost of the Department, and therefore an annual sum of $15,000 has been set apart from University funds to cover the required balance.

To deal with the urgent needs of the University, I consider that the greatest need to-day is the establishment of a Department of Public Health, with a professor and an adequate staff, with facilities for research work in bacteriology and parasitology. The University at present turns out graduates qualified to be general medical practitioners, but there is a growing demand for doctors trained in public health, and a general feeling that the ordinary medical practitioner should have some special training in preventive medicine and hygiene. Especially is this so in China, more particularly in the ports. It has even been suggested that unless a doctor has some knowledge of public health he may not be recognised as eligible to practise in China.

I have heard that the University has been reproached for doing little or nothing for public health training, and it is essential for us to see that such a reproach can no longer be substantiated. Schemes are being explored at present in co-operation with Government. The suggestion has been made that we ought to establish in Hong Kong
a memorial to Sir Patrick Manson, who started the Hong Kong College of Medicine for Chinese which was afterwards amalgamated in the University. Such a memorial might well take the form of the establishment of a Manson Professorship of Preventive Medicine and Hygiene. I make an earnest appeal for funds to enable this suggestion to be carried out.

Further Buildings Required.

Further buildings are required for the Medical Faculty, for instance a separate building for surgery and extensions of laboratories already overcrowded owing to the increasing number of students. In the Faculty of Arts there is a need for a Professor of Philosophy, and a whole-time Reader of Geography.
There is also a need for a professor of Law, and a proper footing for it is necessary to have adequate endowment, for they cannot be started unless there is definite provision for the future cost.

In regard to a Department of Law, this was urged only recently by Mr. Justice Feitham, and the Inns of Court and various people at Home have shown themselves in great sympathy with such a proposal; but no money has yet been forthcoming to enable us to undertake such a project. It can scarcely be denied that such a department would be of immense value to China, where the legal methods and procedure of the West are gaining ground. Before we establish a Department of Law it will have to be decided whether we should aim at giving a qualification which would be accepted professionally in China or confine ourselves to the theoretical study of law.

The construction of a new Prime Movers Laboratory, and a new Hydraulics Laboratory is an urgent necessity. It is estimated that each building would cost about a lakh of dollars, apart from the expense of moving the machines. The total cost would probably be about $250,000.

More should be done to add to the athletic and other facilities enjoyed by the students. The Vice-Chancellor once stated to me that such success as the University has secured during the period that he has been here has been very largely due to the good sense, good behaviour and general reasonableness of the students, and I think therefore that they fully deserve that more amenities should be provided for them. I should be glad if among other things a good gymnasium could be built and equipped for their recreation.

In having achieved as much as has been achieved, the University owes much to the present Vice-Chancellor, Sir William Hornell, and to the professors and lecturers who have loyally carried out their duties in spite of a certain measure of disappointment. Help and sympathy have been forthcoming from certain quarters in England, and I should especially like to record our thanks to Professor G.
Elliot-Smith, Professor of Anatomy, University College, London, for his readiness to assist us in sending out competent lecturers.
The Colonial Office Educational Committee now takes a real interest in the affairs of the University, and is of considerable assistance. The Imperial College of Science and Technology and the School of Architecture at Liverpool have also been most helpful; in fact, the general attitude towards the University among the most progressive University men in England has been most encouraging.

Funds Necessary for Development.

All this loyal work and sympathy help will however avail little if we cannot obtain the funds essential to development. I venture therefore to make a very earnest appeal for substantial financial help. This University is an institution of which Hong Kong may well be proud, and I cannot believe that those interested in the Colony and its future will allow such a valuable asset—an asset not only to the Colony itself, but to the Far East—to deteriorate. Rather do I feel an unshakable confidence that such an appeal will meet with a notable response, which will ensure the future success of the University and make it worthy both of its founder, and of all those who have shown such great devotion to it in the past.

FIREWORK AND DANCE

Last night the University was thronged with a large gathering including Sir William and Lady Peel.

At 9.30 p.m. there was a firework display which was followed by a fancy dressed dance.

The prizes for fancy dresses were as follows:—

Best Chinese Costume (Indies)
Miss Barbara Chu (Men) Mr.
Wong Kam Pew

Best non-Chinese Costume
(Indies) Miss Jeanette Marr
(Men) Mr. Wong Kam Chung.
